U. S. BUREAUS DIVIDED ON RAIDS; LETTERMAN TO FACE POLICE BOARD

Sergeant to Be Tried for Disciplinary Action by Superiors.

FORMAL COMPLAINT FILED BY HARMONS

Couple Whose House He Invaded Declares He Used Force.

WARRANTLESS HUNT IS BASIS OF CHARGE

Case Wil Be Considered at Next Regular Session on April 16.

Sergt. O. J. Letterman, head of the roving vice and liquor squad of the Police Department, will face the Police Trial Board for disciplinary action because of his warrantless raid on the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Eleck Harmon, on S street near Sixteenth, on March 28.

Formal complaint against the sergeant and his squad was made to Lieut. L. I. H. Edwards at police headquarters by Mr. and Mrs. Harmon.

Their statement was taken down by a stenographer in the presence of Lieut. Edwards and Harry M. Luckett, chief and property clerk of the Police Department, who is charged with the task of drafting the formal charges on which policemen are tried before the Trial Board.

New Point Is Disclosed.

There was only one important point brought out in the complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon which had not been developed in public discussion of the raid in the past. Mrs. Harmon said that when she opened the door of her home in answer to the knock of Sergt. Letterman, the rum squad chief thrust out his arm and pushed her aside and forced his way inside the apartment.

Although he went to the Harmon home ostensibly to arrest a man for whom he had a warrant, but who lived elsewhere, Mrs. Harmon said the raiders refused to believe her statement that the man was not there but insisted on searching the apartment.

Some liquor was found in a closet and this was made the basis of an arrest by the rum squad, but the case fell flat when Assistant United States District Attorney David A. Hart refused to issue papers in the case the following day.

Appear Alone at Headquarters.

Immediately following the raid Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, announced that he would send the raiders before the Trial Board as soon as formal complaint had been received from the aggrieved parties. Robert I. Miller, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Harmon, announced that he intends to seek warrants for the arrest of the raiders, and Maj. Pratt said that the policemen would be placed under arrest immediately the warrants were issued. Mr. Miller also announced his purpose to file civil suits for $10,000 damages against the members of the liquor squad.

These things were not done, however, and Mr. and Mrs. Harmon were unaccompanied when they appeared at the executive office at police headquarters in the District Building yesterday to make formal complaint.

Mrs. Harry Givens, a member of the grand jury, is one of the witnesses who will be summoned for the prosecution. Mrs. Givens resides in an apartment on the same floor with Mr. and Mrs. Harmon and while the raiders were in the Harmon home she appeared and demanded to know whether they had raided the Harmon home under legal authority.

Followed Stott Raid.

The Letterman raid on the Harmon home followed close on the heels of the sensational raid made by Capt. William G. Stott, commander of the Third Precinct, on an alleged speakeasy near Eighteenth and L streets.

Although admitting that he had no warrant and no evidence which would justify the issuance of a warrant Capt. Stott broke down barricaded doors and entered the place and using an ax smashed a bar and all of the furniture in the place. The next day he sought papers and these were issued by Assistant District Attorney Hart. Then Capt. Stott returned to the raided premises and proceeded to do some more wrecking with his ax.

The formal charges against Sergt. Letterman will be ready to be served on him before the end of the week and the case will be called before the Police Trial Board at its regular session a week from today, unless there is some development which would justify a request by defense or prosecution for a postponement. Sergt. Letterman was not suspended nor were members of his squad.

Dynamite Blast Kills Workman.

Montreal, April 8 (A.P.).—A building used for mixing gelatine dynamite was blown to splinters and its only occupant, James Cunningham, killed today by the explosion of 1,500 pounds of dynamite at the plant of the Canadian Industries, Ltd., at Beloeil, Quebec. The cause of the blast was not determined.

"When Is Man Drunk?" Problem to Senators

When is a man drunk?

James J. Britt, chief counsel of the Prohibition Bureau, told the Senate District committee yesterday that a "common understanding" has been reached that when a man's step is uncertain, when his speech becomes thickened, and when he talks "gibberish," then he is drunk.

Senator Robsion (Republican), of Kentucky, said that in one community a man was drunk when he was in the gutter and holding on with both hands to keep from falling down.

FIVE MEN ARRESTED IN HUGE LIQUOR PLOT

Warrants Out for Fifteen Others, Alleging Maryland Still Operation.

SOLD IN WASHINGTON

With five men under bonds and two women and thirteen men being sought on warrants charging conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, the United State attorney's office and prohibition officials believe that a wholesale liquor plot has been uncovered.

The alleged plot, which, according to the warrant, covered manufacture, possession, sale and transportation of liquor, was disclosed yesterday when United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage issued a blanket warrant for the arrest of the twenty individuals. W. A. Heddens and Frank D. Tippett, of the Prohibition Bureau, swore to the warrants.

Immediately afterward arrest warrants were placed in the hands of five deputy United States marshals, who quickly rounded up five of the alleged conspirators. After these had been arraigned, had pleaded not guilty and had been ordered held on bonds ranging from $5,000 to $2,000, the deputies then began the hunt for the others. Hearing on the charges probably will be held next week, although no date as yet has been fixed.

Those arraigned yesterday are Al Mendelson, Jerry Charteres, Frank Baker, Eddie Crogan and Roy Beasley. Mendelson was ordered held under $5,000 bond, Beasley and Charteres under $3,000 bonds and Crogan and Baker under $2,000 bonds.

The alleged plot is said by Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt to have been interstate in its scope. Denatured alcohol was distilled near Riverdale, Md., transported to Washington, stored at seven houses or apartments in the Northwest section, and thence retailed to various sections of the city, according to Mr. Orcutt. These allegations also are recited in the warrant.

Others for whom warrants have been issued are: Ida Mendelson, Nettie Clark, James Clark, Harry Kusher, Earl Harbin, "Philadelphia Jake" (real name not known), Sam Morris, Corbin Shield, Tommy McNichols, Jake Lerner, Roy ("Bozo") Ahern, Gene Saunders, Jack Gordon, Jack Baum and a man known only as "Andrew."

The alleged conspiracy is said to have been the ringleaders. Bonds of I. James Clark, Kushner, Harbin, the Mendelsons and Lerner are said to have been the ring leaders. Bonds of $5,000 will be asked for each of the alleged leaders when arraigned, Mr. Orcutt said. A $3,000 bond will be asked for Shield and bonds of $2,000 for the others.

The specific charge recited in the warrant is that the twenty persons "did unlawfully conspire, confederate

Youngquist, Britt Clash at Senate Hearing on Howell Bill.

MITCHELL AID HITS DISPUTED PROVISION

Clause Is "Inadvisable," He Tells District Committee.

DRY UNIT ATTORNEY DEFENDS MEASURE

Mooted Item Would Allow Search of Premises Which Get Liquor.

A split between the Department of Justice and the Prohibition Bureau on the "home raid" provision in the Howell prohibition enforcement bill for Washington was revealed yesterday at a hearing before the Senate District committee.

Assistant Attorney General Aaron G. Youngquist opposed the provision, while James J. Britt, chief counsel for the Prohibition Bureau, approved it.

The bill is designed to make Washington what President Hoover thinks it should be—the model prohibition city of the United States.

Purpose of Provision.

Under the disputed "home raid" provision, a policeman might obtain a search warrant for any private dwelling to which liquor is delivered or any private dwelling from which liquor is removed.

Senator Robert G. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, author of the bill, says that the provision is aimed at private dwellings in which bootleggers store their goods, but opponents of the provision feel that it might lead to grave abuses.

At yesterday's hearing, however, there was nobody to argue against the provision. For the better part of the hearing those present were all drys.

Few Wets Attend.

Senator Kean (Republican), New Jersey, a wet, was present at the beginning, but soon left. Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, another wet, came in after the discussion about the home-raid provision had been concluded.

Those who sat through most of the hearing were all drys. They were Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, the chairman; Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, author of the "five and ten" law; Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, and Senator Robsion (Republican), Kentucky.

Assistant Attorney General Youngquist, who now has the job that once was held by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, declared that section 10 of the bill—the section which would permit raids on private dwellings to which liquor had been delivered or from which it had been taken—was "inadvisable."

Objections Are Stated.

Pointing out that there was no such provision in the Volstead act, he said that it was the desire of the Department of Justice that Federal legislation on prohibition be uniform. Anyway, he said, the bill would materially aid enforcement here without that particular section.

Former Judge Britt, counsel for the Prohibition Bureau, told the committee that, while he wanted to cooperate with the Department of Justice "heart and soul," he could not see any objection to the home raid provision.

In many of the States h said, there are laws equally as drastic.

ANGLO-FRENCH ACCORD STIRS NAVAL ENVOYS

RENEWED TURMOIL GRIPS CONFERENCE

News Means Five-Power Pact Conversations Will Go On.

OFFICIALS EXPRESS CONFLICTING OPINION

Technical Progress Made; Committee Approves Submarine Curb.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Agreement in principle on interpretation of article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations has been reached between Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald after a two-hour talk this evening, according to both sides.

Five-power conversations will thus continue and the London naval conference is consequently plunged into renewed confusion. So complicated is the situation tonight and so contradictory the information given out semiofficially from French and British sources that any interpretation of the news must be open to question.

M. Briand is full of optimism, says he is still hopeful of a five-power treaty, and that the British and French are agreed not only on article XVI but also on bringing the Briand-Kellogg pact into closer harmony with the league covenant.

British Point to Obstacles.

The British official spokesman, on the other hand, although admitting that agreement exists in principle on the league formula, strikes a somber note, emphasizing the probably insuperable obstacles in the way of a five-power treaty being concluded here. He explained tonight that British concessions to meet French security wishes are predicated upon the assumption of a large reduction in the French naval program.

The question of how much France will reduce her fleet in exchange for a British definition of this country's obligations, fortified by Secretary Stimson's conditional suggestion that the United States might enter a consultative pact, was formally raised tonight by the British for the first time. The problem will be discussed further tomorrow by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander and Jacques-Louis Dumesnil, French minister of marine.

Premier MacDonald will also seek tomorrow to draw Dino Grandi, Ital-

FIRST MEDAL BY ENGINEERS GIVEN HOOVER

MARKS RECOGNITION OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Presentation Features Society's Banquet as Session Closes.

PROFESSION LAUDED IN ACCEPTANCE TALK

Orville Wright Is Included Among Four for Fiftieth Anniversary Citations.

Surrounded by leaders of his profession from all parts of the United States and 22 foreign countries, President Hoover last night received the first of the newly instituted Hoover Gold Medals, presented by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers "for distinguished civic and humanitarian achievements." The presentation was the highlight of a banquet at the Hotel Mayflower, closing the society's two-day convention here.

In making the award, Dexter S. Kimball, heading a board representing all branches of the society, paid high tribute to Mr. Hoover's civic contributions, and explained that while numerous medals had been instituted for engineering achievements, the award named in honor of the President was the first commemorating an extension of engineering knowledge into the field of public service.

"Qualifications for this medal," he said, "will be the highest attending any engineering medal, and I hope that future medalists will measure up to the standards of the first, who has shed such luster upon our profession."

Prediction by Millikan.

President Hoover received the medal with a brief address stressing the need for engineering knowledge in government. Engineers, through their perfection of machinery, the automobile and airplane, have greatly multiplied problems of administration, he explained. "To solve these problems we have need for a large leavening of the engineering knowledge, engineering attitude of mind and engineering method."

The President made it clear that he did not advocate "that all public services be turned over to the engineer," but insisted that some element of engineering knowledge was necessary for the proper supervision of the numerous inventions that engineers have perfected.

Prior to the President's address, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, past president of

RUTH M'CORMICK WINS SENATE NOMINATION IN ILLINOIS OVER DENEEN

HAMILTON LEWIS DEMOCRATIC CHOICE

Yates Ahead in Contest for Representative-at-Large Place on Ticket.

Chicago, April 8 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick, aspiring to become the first woman elected to the United States Senate, stepped forward to a generous lead over Senator Charles S. Deneen tonight in the early returns from today's State-wide primary election.

Republican voters gave the daughter of Mark Hanna a 3 to 2 preference for the senatorial nomination as the tabulation of the heavy voting began, and Mrs. McCormick maintained her advantage as returns from down-State precincts flowed in.

Returns from 1,611 precincts out of 7,117 in Illinois gave Deneen, 98,639; McCormick, 154,289. These figures included 1,163 precincts in Cook County (Chicago), which gave Deneen, 62,359; McCormick, 116,743. These returns included reports from 54 down-State counties.

Nomination Is Conceded.

The nomination of Mrs. McCormick was conceded tonight by the Chicago Daily News, only metropolitan newspaper to support Senator Charles S. Deneen for renomination. The Deneen headquarters, however, declined to admit defeat when 1,611 of the 7,117 precincts in Illinois had given Representative McCormick a lead of 56,000 votes.

Mrs. McCormick based her campaign largely on opposition to American entrance into the world court. Senator Deneen supported the world court proposal.

Mrs. McCormick, supported by the City Hall Republican faction whose grip on local politics was shaken by the Deneen group two years ago, apparently was sweeping the renascent Thompson-Snow alliance to victory over the candidates sponsored by Deneen. Virtually every Deneen candidate for county office was running second to the City Hall standard bearers in the preliminary reports.

Former Senator Lewis Leads.

Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, seeking the Democratic nomination, ran true to form, anticipated by his supporters with a top-heavy lead for the senatorial nomination.

In 57 precincts of 21 downstate counties, former Senator Lewis was given 1,481 votes for Democratic senatorial nomination; James H. Kirby 572, and three others polled 500 votes. The two rivals for the Republican senatorial toga remained in seclusion at their headquarters and declined to offer comment on the trend of the voting.

Mrs. McCormick watched the results of the battle tonight with her daughter, Katrina, and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who had come from Washington to join her girlhood chum.

Yates Leading for Congress.

Representative Richard Yates was given an outstanding plurality in the early returns for renomination as congressman-at-large on the Republican ticket. Twenty downstate precincts gave him 2,002 votes. Running second was Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, Ill., who twice was refused a seat in the U. S. Senate because of public utility contributions to his campaign fund. Smith had 965 votes and Frank H. Funk, of Blooming-

DANIELS EVIDENCE BRIEF

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A couple of Alabama gentlemen, exchanging quaint pleasantries, completely obscured the Republicans' "issue" against Democratic Chairman Raskob before the Senate lobby committee yesterday.

In fact, Josephus Daniels, Raleigh publisher and former Secretary of the Navy, who came up to discuss his recent editorial calling for Mr. Raskob's resignation, was on the stand only seven minutes and the extent of his testimony was virtually to say "yes" three times to as many questions asked by the Republican Senator Robinson.

Much more had been expected from Mr. Daniels because he accepted with so much alacrity Senator Robinson's invitation to appear and because the forces of Senator Simmons in North Carolina want to revive Raskobism to prevent the senator's defeat in the forthcoming primary. But Mr. Daniels seemed in no mood to play Senator Robinson's game at all. It was explained on his behalf subsequently, in fact, that some one had passed through Raleigh some time ago and tried to line him up on the Muscle Shoals fight and that when he received Senator Robinson's telegram he thought his appearance before the lobby committee concerned this.

"Have you ever been a member of the Democratic national committee, Mr. Daniels?" Senator Robinson asked rubbing his hands expectantly.

"Yes."

"For how long?"

"For 20 years."

"I asked that question, Mr. Dan-

POSTOFFICE FRAUDS CHARGED IN SENATE

Nye, Blaine Attack Leases and Allege Property Value Inflation in St. Paul.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY ASKED

(Associated Press.)

Charges of "fraud and corruption" costing the Government millions of dollars in excess rentals on postoffice buildings annually were voiced in the Senate yesterday by Senators Nye, North Dakota, and Blaine, Wisconsin, Republicans.

Senator Blaine condemned the Postoffice and Justice Departments for "criminal negligence" in failing to break the leases. He offered a resolution calling for a Senate investigation of the 1,200 postoffice building leases.

The attack centered on an item in the Postoffice Department appropriation bill allowing $120,000 for next year's rental of the commercial postoffice station in St. Paul. Neither the Blaine resolution nor the appropriation item were voted upon after the all-day assault.

Defending the present administration, Senator Phipps (Republican), Colorado, said no rent had been paid on the St. Paul postoffice substation since March, 1928. He read a letter from Postmaster General Brown suggesting that provision be made for a lump-sum appropriation of $60,000 for rental of another St. Paul building pending settlement of court action involving the commercial station.

Senator Nye asserted the St. Paul transaction "smells to the high heaven."

"If other leases are on a par with that at St. Paul," he said, "the situation is rotten and unconscionable and it is a story that possibly

Gold Paid Mexicans To Ransom Oil Man

Release of Bristow From Mountain Prison Held Imminent.

Oklahoma City, April 8 (A.P.).—A copyrighted dispatch from Merle Blakely, correspondent for the Oklahoma City Times and Oklahoman, today said that the release of J. E. Bristow, Oklahoma and Texas oil man who was captured by Mexican bandits a month ago, was imminent.

The dispatch, sent from Ahuacatlan, Nayarit, shortly after noon, stated that messengers of Obie Bristow, the oil man's son, who went to the western coast of the southern republic recently to negotiate with the bandits, finally had made contact with his father's captors in their isolated retreat near Hilo, a mountain village. The messengers carried gold with which to pay the ransom.

A private scout returned to Ahuacatlan from the vicinity of Hilo, the dispatch says, and reported that the camp of Cruz Delgado, bandit leader, had been reached by the messengers and that final payment of the gold was under way.

Hilo is in the mountains surrounding Ixtlan. On payment of the money, release of the 60-year-old oil and gold prospector was expected immediately.

Mr. Bristow is being held high up on the side of an extinct volcano, between two great lava beds. The bandit gang has been depleted by the activity of two detachments of federal troops. Three of the outlaws were shot to death by military snipers and four others are prisoners, the dispatch says.

Troops followed the band relentlessly until Monday when Gen. Pablo Rodriguez, miliary commander of the Nayarit area, finally acceded to requests by young Bristow that pursuit be withdrawn, at least until contact might be established.

Mr. Bristow fell in the hands of the bandits on March 10 while he was prospecting for gold in the mountains of Nayarit. Details of his capture have remained obscure. An interpreter by the name of Fields, who accompanied Mr. Bristow, delivered the ransom note. He was held as a possible conspirator and since then has maintained a stony silence.

Word of the capture did not reach the outside world for several days. When the news reached Obie Bristow, a former University of Oklahoma football star, he at once left Oklahoma for Mexico by airplane after making arrangements for obtaining ransom money.

Arriving at Mazatlan, Obie found he could not make immediate contact with the bandits, who, pursued by federal troops, had retreated deeper into the mountains.

The son has worked persistently in behalf of his captive father during the month he has been seeking means for making contact with the bandits, the Times correspondent relates.

Tale of Love, Murder Bares 18 Years of Hiding in Home

Janitor Held in Slaying Allegedly Secreted by Wife of Victim.

Los Angeles, April 8 (A.P.).—A strange tale of murder, which has for its background an 18-year-old assertedly illicit love affair between the widow of the victim and an admirer who lived in a secret compartment in the family home, was offered by Herman Shapiro, an attorney, today as the solution of the slaying nearly eight years ago of Fred Oesterreich, wealthy apron manufacturer.

The alleged sweetheart, Walter Klein, about 40 years old and married, was arrested shortly after Shapiro gave police an affidavit telling of a long private investigation into the killing. The widow, Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, had not been located tonight.

While detectives studied the affidavit, apparently finding at first in-

Fight Looms as Agreement to Consider District Nominees Is Made.

The nominations of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, and Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer to be Commissioners of the District of Columbia will be acted on by the Senate early this afternoon.

An agreement to take up the nominations as soon as the Senate meets at noon today was reached late yesterday. It was brought about by Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, acting for Chairman Capper, of the Senate District committee.

When it adjourned yesterday the Senate was in executive session; under yesterday's agreement, it will still be in executive session when it meets today. Hence consideration of the nominations will be in order.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, plans to make an Howard P. Savage, former national commander of the American Legion held a comfortable majority in the Republican race for nomination as county treasurer. He was allied with the city administration.

Primary Proves Orderly.

Voting booths closed at 5 p. m. today after one of the most orderly Illinois primary elections of recent years. Only one minor shooting, the bombing of a soft drink parlor and a smattering of local disturbances marred the election in Chicago. Election commissioners estimaetd the vote in Chicago would exceed the previous record of 630,000 for a primary election.

Down in the "Bloody Twentieth" Ward the cry of "fraud" was raised—and Morris Eller, accused two years ago of instigating the rule of gun, club and kidnaper in his ward, was the first to raise it.

"They're stealing my election," he pleaded before the election commissioners, and seven squad cars streaked down into the Maxwell street district to track down the gang Eller said was intimidating Negro voters. The seven squads came back, reporting, "All quiet."

Mrs. Longworth Attends.

Senator Charles S. Deneen and Ruth Hanna McCormick, chief attractions in the contests that drew an estimated 800,000 to the voting booths in Chicago, 1,000,000 in Cook County, or 1,500,000 in the State voted early. Mrs. McCormick cast her ballot at Byron, Ill., and returned with her daughter, Katrina, to meet Alice Roosevelt Longworth, here from Washington, to await the outcome.

More than 300,000 had voted at 10 a. m., and election officials predicted the total would surpass that of the presidential primary of April, 1928. The police, who had ample time to twiddle their thumbs after the first furore of the early morning bombing, recapitulated the day's work at noon and found fourteen men had been arrested.

Bomb Damages Store.

The bomb damaged the front of a soft-drink parlor. An alderman had been attacked by kidnapers but escaped. A restaurant employe had been shot, not seriously, by political workers. A handful of election watchers and workers were beaten, but for the most part the detective squads that cruised through the notorious black spots of Chicago had little to do.

Out in Stickney, the suburb where the Capone mob dabbles in politics, a dozen "floaters" were picked up, charged with interfering with clerks. One was released immediately by a judge. The others admitted they were not voters.

Silas F. Strawn, savior of civic finances through his recent activities as chairman of a citizens' committee, fund himself disqualified. Absent from the city on registration day, he had forgotten that citizens could not vote by affidavit in Chicago.

intensive fight against confirmation of the Crosby nomination, and it is probable that he will be joined by Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

"I have nothing against Gen. Crosby," Senator Copeland said yesterday. "From what I have heard, he is a first-class man. But, in my opinion, his appointment is a clear violation of the law.

"In a city as large as this, it seems to me that the President would have no trouble finding a Commissioner about whom there would be no legal quarrel."

Senator Glass has heard that, in the Coolidge regime, the Attorney General held that Maj. Gen. William Black was not eligible for the Commissionership, and he has been trying to find out if this is true.

On Monday the Senate District committee received a letter from the Department of Justice saying that there was no record of such an opinion by former Attorney General Stone.

Senator Glass said that he was not satisfied with this, that it might have been former Attorney General Sargent. He said he was going to make his own investigation of the matter and that his stand on Gen. Crosby would depend on what he found out.

There has been no opposition to the nomination of Dr. Reichelderfer, and it is expected to be approved today without discussion.

BIRTH-RATE SLUMP SHOCK TO FRANCE

12,564 More Died in 1929 Than Were Born; Figures of War Time Rivaled.

ENTIRE NATION ALARMED

Paris, April 8 (A.P.).—Peace-time France was brought face to face today with the fact that deaths have shot almost as far ahead of births in numbers as in the years when the nation was fighting on the battlefields of Europe for its very life.

More deaths, fewer births, fewer marriages, and more divorces in 1929 are the gist of the findings of an official report made public today by Francois Poncet, undersecretary of state for national economy.

The figures, showing that deaths exceeded births in 1929 by 12,564, struck consternation into the minds of many Frenchmen solicitous for the well being of the country.

Ratio Has Long Been Problem.

The ratio between births and deaths in France has been a problem for many years, but was never so brutally brought before the country as it was today.

The afternoon newspaper, l'Intransigeant, says:

"These are extremely disquieting figures. One must shout them at the top of his voice until a means is found of stopping this decrease in the population of France. France must live, not die."

The Petit Parisien asserts, "We can not confine ourselves to thinking about the present, but must look toward the future."

Two Factors Cited.

The statistics revealed that for the first time since the war deaths exceeded births last year. Two factors were stated to have caused the increase. The first was a rise of more than 10 per cent in the number of deaths during 1929, and the second a decline in the birth rate, which in 1929 reached the lowest figure it has touched since the end of the World War.

In 1928 births exceeded deaths in France by 70,205, and the drop last year was a dizzy one. In 1920, when for the first time statistics for France, Alsace and Lorraine were available, there were 159,790 more births than deaths.

The report today tabulated deaths in 1929 at 741,104, compard with 675,110 in 1928 and 674,621 in 1920. Births in 1929 were 728,540, compared with 745,315 in 1928 and 834,411 in 1920.

NYE, BLAINE ALLEGE POSTAL CORRUPTION

rivals the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease."

Nye said the fair rental value of the St. Paul station would be about $38,000 annually. He charged that Jacob Kulp & Co., of Chicago, which controlled the St. Paul lease, had inflated the valuation of the property after obtaining in 1923 from the postoffice department a clause in the lease guaranteeing against cancellation of the 20-year leasing contract.

In return for that clause, Nye said, Kulp reduced the annual rent for the Government from $120,775 to $120,000.

Senator Blaine read from records of the Postoffice Department, which he said contained a report from C. H. Clarahan, an inspector, stating that Kulp promised to see to it that he would be promoted if a favorable report were made on the St. Paul lease. The records quoted Clarahan as replying he did not want any help in promotion from Kulp.

The Wisconsin senator said Clarahan's report was missing in the departmental record. He asserted that "the absence of that report is a badge that points to the connection between the Postoffice Department and Mr. Kulp in these frauds."

Blaine said Kulp & Co. had 27 of the 1,200 postoffice building leases, covering territory from the Pacific Coast to Dallas, Tex.; Columbus, Ohio, and Grand Rapids, Mich.

"There is justification," the Wisconsin senator added, "for the belief that somebody is making money out of this in the service of the Government. The Postoffice Department has been derelict in its duty, negligent toward the Government which the Postmaster General should serve.

"The ramifications go to the First National Bank of Williamsport, Pa."

Blaine did not explain this reference, but thereupon read a letter from an unnamed bank official to an unnamed senator, calling attention to the fight in the House by Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota, to break the postoffice leases, and warning that securities totaling about $150,000 had been sold throughout the country upon the basis of these leases.

"It doesn't become any one," added Blaine, "to suggest that innocent stockholders shall suffer because we seek to uproot this fraud and corruption. If any one should suffer because of the dereliction of Government officials, he has the right to come to Congress for relief."

Senator Phipps asked that the Blaine resolution be referred to the postoffice committee, of which he is chairman, assuring prompt consideration of it. Senator Blaine withheld consent for such a move, temporarily.

Senator Schall (Republican), Minnesota, joined in condemnation of the St. Paul substation lease. He said the total property had been appraised at $317,000 and contended that on the basis of the $120,000 rental the property should actually be worth $2,000,000.

CAMERAMEN BRING BYRD FILMS HOME

VIEW TREES, EAT STEAKS

New York, April 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Little America sent back the first of her returning citizens tonight when Joseph Rucker and Willard Van Der Veer, the two motion picture cameramen of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, returned aboard the Grace liner Santa Cruz.

Pausing for breath almost for the first time since beginning a homeward dash six weeks ago at Dunedin, New Zealand, the men were both asked for the high light of the expedition that kept them well below the world and zero for two years.

"There's no place like home," was the immdiate and unanimous reply.

Enthusiastic Over Byrd.

Both returned with enthusiastic expressions regarding the leadership and personality of Rear Admiral Richard Byrd—still, by the way, "Commander Byrd" to the 42 members of his expedition. They agreed that they had never seen better organization, and that "Commander Byrd did a remarkable job in his leadership."

On their return from the barren, gale-swept wastes of Little America, the cameramen said tonight that there was one thing they were most anxious to see. The thing in question, they said, was a tree—and the first one gave them many gleeful moments of plain, unvarnished staring.

Next in the program, according to the two cameramen, came mice, juicy steaks.

19 Miles of Film Shot.

With them they brought more than 100,000 feet of film—more than 19 miles—giving a complete pictorial record of the Byrd expedition.

"Our job was to 'say it with pictures,'" said Mr. Van Der Veer, "and they will tell the true story of the expedition. However, I would like to say that on this trip—as on every one that Admiral Byrd has undertaken—success has been largely due to painstaking attention given every detail.

"His foresight has repeatedly proven amazing and is largely responsible for the fact that in spite of the bitterest living and working conditions in Little America, we did not lose a single life—in fact, we did not have a single serious accident during our entire trip."

Miss Devereux is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Alexander van Rensselaer, the former Mrs. John R. Fell, and was named after her grandmother's second husband, Alexander van Rensselaer, one of Philadelphia's wealthiest and most prominent social leaders.

Miss Devereux was introduced to society durnig the 1928-29 season at a tea given by her grandmother at Camp Hill, her home in Fort Washington. She is a graduate of the Foxcroft School Middleburg, Va., and is an expert horsewoman.

The 1930 summer outing of the Washington Chamber of Commerce will be held Saturday, June 14, at Epping Forest, on the Severn River, it was announced yesterday.

Members of the organization will leave the Homer Building by bus on the morning of June 14. A luncheon will be served at Epping Forest to be followed by sports events and swimming. A shore dinner will be served at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A short business meeting, with humorous interludes, will be held after the dinner. W. McK. Stowell is chairman of the outing committee.

Safe Containing $106.60 Is Stolen From Office

A cabinet safe containing $106.60 was stolen from the office of Harry L. Anderson, of 419 Seventh street northwest, yesterday.

Police investigation disclosed that a key taken from a drawer in the office was used to open the cabinet and that the thieves then carted away the money box. The box, containing only the checks, was found later by John H. Penrose, janitor.

Gayety Reigns at Dinner Of Women's Press Club

Skits Enliven Cabaret Accompanying Annual Fete; Triangle Solved But Not Proved; Mrs. Longworth Attends "in Spirit" From Chicago.

The Woman's National Press Club gave its annual dinner and cabaret grill last night at the Willard, with women who have achieved distinction in politics, in the professons, in art, literature, society and other fields as guests.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was present "in person," Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, "in spirit." She proved this by telephoning from Chicago the returns in Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick's campaign for the Republican nomination for the Senate.

Mrs. Longworth's absence prevented a practical demonstration of the club's solution of the eternal triangle, hostess and two guests both "rating" first place. This was a new angle on the situation, a triangular table—an equilateral triangle, with the three sides equal to each other and hostess and ranking guests each equal to holding up one side. Deprived of this triumphant Q. E. D., the club offefed the only real solution to a vexed problem and preference, not precedence, governed the seating.

Besides Mrs. Gann, honor guests of the Women's Press Club on this occasion were Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell, Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Mrs. James J. Davis, Representative Florence P. Kahn, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Representative Mary T. Norton, Mrs. Harriet Chalmers Adams, famous geographer and explorer; Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, Mrs. Herbert D. Brown, author of "Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years;" Mrs. Porter H. Dale, president of the Congressional Club; Mrs. Karl Penning, Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, Mrs. Borden Harriman, president of the National Woman's Democratic Club; Mrs. Frank S. Hight, Mrs. David Kincheloe, Mrs. C. William Ramseyer, Miss Mildred Reeves, secretary to the Speaker; Miss Janet Richards, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming and now vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Miss Lola Williams, secretary to the Vice President.

In a program of amusing skits, dances and "words without songs," men—women—and matters figuring in the news were touched upon. Respects were paid to the "White House secretariat," the London conference, to "Senator Smut's" campaign for censorship, to the Hoover commissions and to society's adventures in shop keeping.

"Alice"—armed with a 3-foot cigarette holder and a huge bag filled with poker chips, was featured in "The Mad Tea Party," and to Mrs. Gann was dedicated a song to the tune of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which began:

"My brother 'tis for thee,
Since thou hast only me,
For thee I plan."

Other favorite songs contributed were "Bringing Home the Votes," dedicated to Representative McCormick; "California, I'm for Rum," to Representative Kahn, and "Nobody Knows How Dry I Am," to Representative Rogers.

Miss Ruth E. Jones, president of the Women's National Press Club, presided. The committee for the entertainment included Hazel Grant Edgar, Ruth E. Jones, Mary MacCracken Jones, Gourley Edwards, Elisabeth E. Poe, Blanche M. Joyce, Jackie Martin, Katherine Brooks, May Craig, and Bess Davis Schreiner.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge had sent regrets that she could not be present and "affectionate greetings to her friends of the W. N. P. C." As mistress of the White House Mrs. Coolidge always had wanted to attend a Press Club cabaret grill, but the President did not choose to let her until after he had moved out of the White House. Just now the Coolidges choose to be moving again. Mrs. Henry L. Stimson was another much regretted absentee, because she is in London with the Secretary of State for the naval conference and because her invitation, addressed to Woodley, Washington, D. C., came back marked "Unknown."

Members and guests present included: Mrs. Elna Harwood Wharton, Mrs. Elizabeth May Craig, Miss Roberta V. Bradshaw, Mrs. Evelyn C. Condon, Miss Ruth E. Jones, Miss Blanche M. Joyce, Miss Mildred Brown, Miss Bess Furman, Mrs. Susan Hunter Walker, Miss Josephine Hemphill, Mrs. Margaret B. Downing, Mrs. Elenore E. Townsend, Mrs. Catherine Turlington, Miss Isabelle F. MAN HID AWAY IN HOME BEFORE KILLING OWNER, LAWYER SAYS

spection a partial verification of its allegations, criminologists began an examination of Klein.

Shapiro, in his affidavit, attempted to supply the missing links of the puzzling murder. As the crime was left in police records when the original investigation ended in failure, it is, substantially: Oesterreich was found slain in the hallway of his large house the night of August 22, 1922. On entering, police searched and came upon a closet locked from the outside. The door was forced and inside, crumpled on the floor in a faint, was the widow. It was the locked door which held police from forcing her to trial.

Shapiro affirmed that he roomed at the home in 1922. While Mrs. Osterreich was in jail during the original investigation he visited her. She was nervous and finally he elicited the information that "some one" was hiding in the house. She told him to place food in a certain spot and added that if he "scratched" on the walls, "some one" would appear.

The attorney said he followed these instructions and from a place under the eaves Klein appeared. In time a friendship grew up between the two men. Shapiro said, until the man one day told him he shot Oesterreich during a quarrel the night of August 22 between the manufacturer and Mrs. Oesterreich. For eighteen years, Shapiro quoted Klein as saying, he had lived secretly in Oesterreich's homes in Milwaukee, Wis., and Los Angeles. After the murder he locked the widow in the closet and returned to his hiding place until the police investigation subsided.

When arrested, Klein was working as a janitor in an apartment house. He denied the crime. He said Shapiro had him under a spell. He admitted living in the house and police found the hiding place.

A vital clew in the new investigation is missing. The record of a fingerprint taken from the closet door has disappeared from police files.

MOUNTAIN MURDER PROSECUTION RESTS

Self-Defense Plea Expected in Devilbiss Trial Next Wednesday.

STATEMENT IS ADMITTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, April 8.—The State rested its case late this afternoon in the murder trial of Jacob R. Devilbiss, 26, of Great Cacapon, accused of the murder of Theodore Wreckman, 25, German coal miner, of Crucible, Pa. Court was adjourned until Wednesday morning. No witnesses for the defense has been summoned, so far as could be learned, and it is expected that after the defendant himself testifies in his own behalf Wednesday morning the case will be argued.

The killing occurred the night of February 22, on a lonely mountain road a short distance from the Devilbiss home at Great Cacapon. The murdered man and Devilbiss had been working in Pennsylvania as coal miners for several years prior to the murder.

The State has contended that Devilbiss lured Wreckman into the West Virginia mountains and slew him in order to obtain possession of the latter's new automobile. The defense in opening its case declared it would show the killing was done in self-defense during a drunken fight, and that the fight was a direct result of a "party" the two men had been on with two married women in Brownsville, Pa., on the night preceding the murder.

The prosecution succeeded in getting into evidence several oral and written statements in which Devilbiss is alleged to have admitted killing Wreckman. One of the alleged confessions was made in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Allen here and the other to West Virginia State police in the Jefferson County Jail at Charles Town shortly after the defendant was brought back to West Virginia from Pennsylvania, where he was arrested.

The trial, which began Monday morning, has been attracting much attention in the eastern Panhandle of West Virginia, and on both days the little courthouse here has been crowded.

HOOVER IS AWARDED ENGINEERING MEDAL

the American Association for the Advancement of Science, spoke on the bonds between engineering and science, and the necessity for close cooperation between the two. He visioned the day when solar engines would harness the sun's heat for man's work, adding that it was unnecessary to worry over coal and oil supplies," as two modern countries receive in a day as much heat as is produced by all the coal burned in 24 hours throughout the world."

Hoovers Stay Through Program.

An address by Charles Piez, president of the society, on the broadening responsibilities of the engineer, was read by the secretary, as Mr. Piez was prevented from attending by illness.

William F. Durand, past president of the society and toastmaster at last night's banquet, opened the program with a resume of engineering accomplishments from the dawn of civilization up to modern times. He spoke of the necessity of looking to the future rather than the past, and urged the delegates to arrive at a full appreciation of the obligations that the profession imposed upon them.

President and Mrs. Hoover arrived promptly and remained throughout the three-hour program. At the President's table were Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, Acting Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, Ambassador and Mme. Claudel of France, Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Jewett, Mr. Durand, and Mr. Kimball.

Machine-Made Future.

A large picture of the President was hung over the speakers' platform, and the hall was decorated with the American flag and those of the 22 nations represenen. Music was furnished by the Marine Band orchestra.

Contribution of Engineers.

The text of the President's address follows:

"I am glad to join with my fellow members in this celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. It would be a difficult task to measure the blessings brought by this association through the stimulation to invention, the improvement of methods, the adequate training of engineers, and the advancement of knowledge in a large sense. During its span of life it has contributed a great part in the development of an art into a mighty profession upon whose capacity and fidelity rest so much of human progress.

"I feel especially honored that the association should, through the beneficence of Mr. Lauer, have established a new distinction among engineers and should have designated me as its first recipient. The purpose of this medal is to mark the public service of men who have gone outside their strictly professional work to interest themselves in civic and humanitarian affairs. And the engineers have something to contribute to public service.

"With the development of our great national tools—our engines, our railways, our automobiles, our airplanes, our steamships, our electric power and a score of other great implements, together with the supplies of material upon which they depend, the engineer has added vastly to the problems of government, for government must see that the control of these tools and these materials are not misused to limit liberty and freedom, that they advance and do not retard equality of opportunity amongst all our citizens.

Multiplication of Problems.

"These great discoveries and inventions have brought great blessings to humanity, but they have multiplied the problems of government and the complexity of these problems progresses with the increase of our population. Every county government, every municipal government, every State government, and the Federal Government itself, is engaged in constant attempts to solve a multitude of public relationships to these tools which the engineers by their genius and industry constantly force to the very doorstep of government, and in solving these problems we have need for a large leavening of the engineering knowledge and engineering attitude of mind and engineering method. These problems of public relation are unsolvable without the technical knowledge of the engineer. They are unsolvable without the [illegible] until engineer's approach to truth. That is, first to determine the facts, arange these facts in proper perspective and then distill truth from them in the retort of experience.

"Engineers do not undertake to build these gigantic tools, whether bridges, power plants or railroads, without knowing the service they are to perform, without infinite patience in discovery of economic and scientific fact, without the adaptation of experience, without giving consideration to capacity in the human material available to conduct them, and without the final crystallization into positive constructive action. No emotion enters into these determinations. Emotion is permissible only in contemplation of their service to humanity.

Should Stimulate Activities.

"But when the problems which these great tools create come to the door of Government they are at once emotional problems, for the resolution of our people for equality of opportunity, for freedom from domination, for maintenance of initiative and liberty of action, arise from the deepest of human emotions. Yet if we would find solution for these problems, if we would deal with them constructively, we must traverse the same hard road in determining the service we wish to perform and with infinite patience discovering the economic and scientific facts with careful adaptation of experience, with high regard for the human material available to conduct our administration and with positive action in administration.

"Our greatest difficulty in dealing with these problems of Government is when the emotion comes first. Facts and the technical knowledge come slowly or are often lost in a sea of embittered controversy. It is for all these reasons that the engineers with their training, their attitude of mind and their method, can contribute to the solution of the problems which arise from their own creations.

"I am not advocating that all public services be turned over to engineers. I have a high appreciation of the contribution of the other professions, but the engineers, I insist, have a contribution to make to public service and they have an obligation to give that contribution. This distinction which has been established by your association should mark this necessity and should stimulate activities of our engineers in such service."

EXTORTION QUIZZING IRRITATES MAGNATE

Amster, on Stand, Admits He Paid Bills of Woman Named in Charge.

SAYS SHE TRAILED HIM

New York, April 8 (A.P.).—Apparently fatigued and at times considerably irritated by the persistent cross-examination to which he was subjected by the defense attorney, Nathan L. Amster, elderly traction magnate, completed tonight his second day on the witness stand in the trial of Olga Eide Edwards, actress, the defendant who was indicted for extortion on his complaint.

During the day Amster gave details demanded by James D. C. Murray, Miss Edwards' attorney—how during the years of their friendship they met, quite by coincidence, he said, although he was paying the bills, in cities and pleasure resorts all over Europe and the United States.

And again, he went over, item by item, the sums he had given her and lent her, beginning with $40 in 1917 and ending in 1927, with a $100,000 trust fund for the care and education of the 6-year-old boy Miss Edwards has declared is his son.

More than once, Mr. Amster declared emphatically that the sums of money he gave and lent to Miss Edwards—totaling about $170,000 in all—represented at first his philanthropic spirit and later his fear that she would annoy his wife and family by charging publicly that he was the father of her child.

Because last fall Miss Edwards violated the terms of the trust fund by demanding still more money from him, Mr. Amster has said he complained about her to the district attorney. She was arrested after she had accepted marked money from an agent of the district attorney's office.

The man who denies that he is the father of Lee Edwards told of having been with Miss Edwards in Los Angeles, New York, Dallas, Grand Canyon, Ariz.; Paris, San Sebastian, Madrid, Rome, Venice and on the same boat coming back to America. But on the European trip, he declared, she was traveling on money he had lent her and followed him from city to city. It was the same in this country, too, he added.

Before Lee's birth, Amster said, Miss Edwards refused to tell him who was the father of the baby that she wanted to be "all her own," and he denied that the child was named Lee after him.

"My middle name is not Lee or Leo, but Leonard," he explained.

By RUDY VALLEE.

Chapter XVIII.—From Westbrook to Hollywood.

In every interview that I have ever given I have been careful to state that my birthplace was a small town in Vermont called Island Pond. Most peculiarly, however, the interviewers have seen fit for some reason to omit this fact and to refer to me as a Maine boy. Probably this is due to the fact that I spent only two years of my life in Vermont. Although I grew up in Maine, I am very proud of my Green Mountain birthright, and the vacations I have spent in Island Pond were some of the most wonderful days of my life.

However, it was during my boyhood in Westbrook, Me., that I first began to dream of the theater. I must have inherited a love for all things theatrical from my father, who, though a druggist all his life, had been associated with several theaters in various small business ways. Anyway, it was always in the back of my head, and even when I was in the early grades of grammar school I used to climb up by the door of the motion picture booth and peek in to watch the film with fascinated eyes as it went past the aperture plate, with the bright light from the arc lamp shining on it; and the hum of the machine as the operator cranked it by hand and the smell of film and film cement meant as much to me as the picture itself.

Would Manage Theater.

My idea of perfect happiness in life was to be the manager of a theater, who not only selected the films to be shown, but could sit in the theater all day and watch them.

My last years of grammar school I knew I would have to help father in the drug store. I had grown into long pants and I began my first work in the drug store. Being rather dexterous with my hands and quick of mind I proved to be one of father's best clerks, but I never liked the work. It wasn't that I actually disliked manual labor; I never minded chopping 18 pails of ice every day and bringing them upstairs and then packing the ice around the things that had to be kept cold (this was in the days before they had iceless refrigeration), nor did I mind opening the boxes containing countless small boxes and bottles which had to be put away in a thousand and one places in the store.

I enjoyed making the sirups and usually gorged myself on them as I drew them from the large bottles in which they came—I was particularly fond of chocolate sirup and usually became sick from overindulgence.

Little Romance in Work.

But it was the fact that there was little romance in waiting on customers who were slow in making up their minds and who were cross and disagreeable at times; it made me miserable. Then again there was nothing fixed about the hours, we worked from early morning until late at night. Many a time father and I were just about to close the store when a street car would stop in front of our place filled with people coming back from a nearby dance hall and rustic theater, and again we would put on the lights, open the doors and in a breathless rush serve forty and fifty people at the soda fountain.

I had to rush out on cold days and pump gasoline, as we were one of the first drug stores to have a gasoline filling station. The only happiness I knew in the store was when father took on the sale of Victor phonograph records and I had a chance to give demonstrations to possible purchasers of these records. After I had played them twice over I usually knew all the good and bad features of the records and I could invariably whistle and hum along with them. I knew the selling points of each and very rarely failed to sell a record when I attempted to do so. The thing lasted all too short a time, but its effect upon me was profound and tremendous.

Walks Out After Row.

A small event of great future import took place at the beginning of school vacation when a disagreement with the head clerk affected me so that I walked out of the store and went out swimming with the boys.

We had one small movie theater in the town, the Star Theater, which was my idea of the last word in motion-picture theaters. I heard that a boy who worked as assistant operator was leaving his job and that the manager needed some one to take his place.

I must have loved things theatrical when I could get there early in the morning, sweep the entire theater out, downstairs and balcony, with an ordinary broom, and between the two shows sweep the places where thoughtless people had thrown their peanut shells, sweep out the projection booth, clean and oil both machines, change the carbons in the lamp house, rewind the films, help put out the posters, take care of the furnace, polish the brass around the billboard sheets in front and even take tickets until the show began; but I got my reward.

Given Machine to Operate.

I was given the poorer of the two projection machines to operate, and I will never forget the tremendous thrill when the chief operator roughly called to me, gave the crank a great twist and left me, all a-tremble, to catch it before it stopped, and to continue to project the film. I got one of the greatest thrills of my life as I looked out through the hole in the booth to see the personages on the screen who were all brought to life by the magic crank which I held in my hand.

But after standing there hours and hours in the unbearable heat of the booth, cranking for fifteen minutes at a time, always watching to see that the light showed properly on the film, I was somewhat less excited; still I always loved it.

The show changed three times weekly, and the three nights before the changes the two-reel comedy had to be carried to Portland, 6 miles away, to be shipped to another theater on the same chain. I tied the film on the carrier back of my bicycle and bicycled to Portland, left the film at the station and then wearily pedaled home.

Received $7 a Week.

The point was that I saved the carfare; I felt very happy in the thought that I had earned the extra 20 cents.

For all my labors in the theater six days a week (thank heaven there were no Sunday shows in Maine), I received the magnificent sum of $7 dollars, but I was prouder and happier when this pay envelope came to me than I had ever before been in my life, and although my father tried to prevent me from working there he saw that I was determined and permitted me to continue at the theater instead of working in the store.

I continued doing this for two years before I went to Maine's largest theater, the Strand, in Portland. After having served such an apprenticeship in pictures at so little money it is not difficult to imagine the elation I felt when I left for Hollywood with my boys in a special car all our own, to be star in my first picture at a salary of $11,000 a week.

The first night I went to sleep in my berth on the Pullman was perhaps the happiest of my life. I went off to sleep thinking that I was actually going to accomplish the thing that I had often dropped off to sleep dreaming about when just a boy.

The question "How did you enjoy making pictures?" to me is a silly one, because there can be no boy who has not at one time or another wanted to take part in a dramatic playlet that brings a beautiful woman into your arms, takes you with her through trials and misfortunes and finally brings the happy ending. It is fun enough to do this anyway, but to be paid for the effort is certainly doubling the pleasure of the task.

Easy Work, Comparatively.

To some of the stars in Hollywood picture making is extremely arduous, and, of course, it really is, but to my boys and me it was comparatively easy work after the very strenuous program that had been ours for months. Picture work seemed child's play after week after week of four and five shows a day, night club at night until 3, early morning recordings, rehearsals, broadcasts, personal appearances and what not.

True, picture making is a task, because the rehearsals and the final shooting of the picture are much more difficult and nerve-wracking than were the rehearsals for those high school or community plays that most of us did not so long ago. And now, with the coming of sound to pictures much more is demanded of the actor not only in voice, but in talent and initiative during the filming of the scenes, since the talkies have shown the director of his chance to direct the final shooting.

The talkies have brought doom and despair to many formerly successful stars, but hope and success to others who otherwise would never have succeeded. Such, I suppose, is my case, but since the technic of making sound pictures is almost identical with the principles of broadcasting I began my career in pictures at the peak—as a star, thus eliminating all those other preliminary steps of extra or featured player.

JAPAN'S SUBMARINE DEMANDS ARE SNAG

Prospective Three-Power Pact Jeopardized by 14-10 Ratio Plan.

73,000 TONNAGE SOUGHT

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Japan's demand for superiority over the United States in the matter of submarines has became a new and serious obstacle to the prospective three-power pact, according to latest reports from the American delegation at London. The United States Senate would never ratify a treaty containing the latest Japanese proposals and there is some doubt as to whether the Senate will be satisfied with an arrangement whereby Japan obtains parity in submarines with America. Secretary Stimson, who has been very apprehensive over the Japanese negotiations, will not yield further unless he changes his mind at the eleventh hour.

The Japanese have obtained an agreement whereby Great Britain, the United States and Japan are to have parity in submarine tonnage with 53,000 tons as the maximum. Japan now demands the right to increase this tonnage up to 73,000 tons through a transfer of 20,000 tons of destroyers. This would give Japan a 14 to 10 ratio of superiority over America, if the present London program is carried out.

At the Washington conference of 1921-22 the Japanese expressed a readiness to accept a 6 to 10 ratio in submarines. At the Geneva conference of 1927, the American program, submitted to Hugh Gibson, head of the delegation, was as follows:

Ratio Rises Gradually.

"Submarine class—For the United States, 60,000 to 90,000 tons; for the British Empire, 60,000 to 90,000 tons; for Japan, 36,000 to 54,000 tons."

The ratio of six for Japan against ten for the United States was maintained by the American delegation during the first stages of the Geneva conference. But Japan made a bid for a seven to ten submarine ratio. After the submarine question was discussed by the technical committees at Geneva on July 1 and 2 the Japanese consulted with Tokyo and again raised their demands to a seven to nine ratio. This was ultimately agreed to and made part of the Geneva conference official proceedings. Viscount Ishii, speaking for the Japanese government at the afternoon session of the Geneva conference held on July 28 said:

"If the British Empire and the United States now required 90,000 tons in submarines, the Japanese delegation would desire to return to their original figure of 70,000 tons."

This was the maximum Japanese demand respecting submarines prior to the present London conference. The American naval authorities regarded the demand as not acceptable and as giving Japan an unwarranted advantage over the United States. The Japanese have now increased their demands from the maximum seven to nine, up to parity with America and are now seeking a ratio of fourteen to ten in favor of Japan.

Minimize Warfare Value.

In yielding to the Japanese on submarines, members of the American delegation have been influenced by the British contention that submarine warfare than was formerly anticipated. Certain American naval authorities have inclined toward the British view but have not forgotten that the British Admiralty has for years been engaged in a persistent campaign to minimize the importance of submarines and if possible abolish them under international agreement. It has been to the interest of Great Britain to discourage the building of submarines by other powers and the refusal of France to limit submarine building is one of the causes for the downfall of the five-power treaty program.

It is understood that the British and American delegations have agreed that a 53,000-ton maximum for submarines is all that is required and that building above this tonnage is not necessary. Consequently the Japanese demand for an additional 20,000 tons of submarines is not an incentive for Great Britain and the United States to follow the Japanese example and transfer destroyer tonnage to tonnage for submarines. Whether Japan would permit America to make this transfer is not disclosed.

Details with respect to the submarine agreement, the maximum tonnage allowed and the question of whether Japan is committed to construct submarines under 700 tons displacement in her parity arrangement or whether 1,800-ton submarines may be constructed without restriction by Japan are matters which will be closely examined when the final text of the agreement is available.

Man and Child Burned When Lamp Explodes

Special to The Washington Post.

Midland, Md., April 8.—George Allen and his daughter, Lois, aged 9, were burned, the latter seriously, when a coal oil lamp connected with a chicken brooder, exploded on the second floor of their home at the mining town of Klondike, early this morning. The family was sleeping downstairs, and members were aroused by flames cracking through the ceiling from the floor above.

Mr. Allen was burned about the face and neck and the daughter's burns were of such a character it was necessary to remove her to Miner's Hospital, Frostburg. The Lonaconing Fire Department was summoned, but the flames had been brought under control by neighbors before the firemen arrived with the truck.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

THE story of Dr. Josephus Daniels at this late date doing a swift about face to support Senator Simmons for renomination in the June primary is starred with both humor and tragedy.

It is a fine demonstration of how a politician, full of ambition, honors and strategy, can do a lot of brilliant guessing, planning and meneuvering and thereby land in a hole conspicuous alike for its exceeding depth and its distressing discomfort.

Along about last Christmas the shrewd boys of North Carolina, after carefully putting their ears to the ground, reported that a slight creaking could be detected in the Simmons political machine. A superfluous bolt, they said, was rattling around in the engine, and the oil supply had been perilously diluted with acids left by too free a use of religious intolerance to secure more power against Al Smith.

* * * *

AT THIS sweet news five gentlemen were named as likely contestants for the Simmons seat: Dr. Daniels, former governor; Angus W. McLean, Chief Justice Stacy and Mr. Justice Brogden, both of the State Supreme Court, and Josiah W. Bailey.

Followed much gossip and jockeying. Then came the rumor that all the "prominently mentioned," except Mr. Bailey, had mixed caution with aspiration. They had decided, it was said, that while the Simmons machine was a bit creaky, it would be a handsome thing for any one of them to inherit on that sad day when the senator should no longer bestride the scene.

Their brilliant plan was revealed as a buoyant reliance upon the weight of Mr. Simmons' 77 years to remove him by resignation or otherwise from his Senate seat some time after he had won it.

* * * *

THIS highly problematical event having materialized there right in the middle of the road, with engine going and lubrication 100 per cent perfect, would be one fine political machine awaiting a driver—and the four hesitant and prudent aspirants at liberty to battle for the wheel!

But hesitance in politics is dangerous stuff. No sooner had all this deep strategy been acted on than out sprang the hot and hallooing Mr. Bailey, defying all comers and jarring the farthest confines of Tarheelia with the announcement that he was about to tackle the job of reducing the Simmons machine to a mass of junk.

Current reports are that, while the Senator's machine is not yet junk, it labors with loud puffings, snorts and knockings on the up-grades.

All of which probably causes Dr. Daniels to wake up in the middle of the night and ask himself: "After opposing Simmons all these years, why did I pick out this campaign as the time to about-face to him?"

And through the darkness, weird as the banshee's wail, echo doubtless answers: "Why, indeed, dear doctor?"

BRITAIN AND FRANCE REACH TENTATIVE SECURITY ACCORD

French Cabinet Stand Outlined.

The chief snags are that M. Briand is understood to have gained the approval of Prime Minister Andre Tardieu and the French cabinet to a security formula on the understanding that the French fleet will not be materially reduced in consequence, and that Signor Grandi must refuse to discuss league obligations here or abandon the Italian claim to parity with France unless Rome changes front overnight.

The New York World News Service is informed that there is not the slightest chance of this. The French will demand a superiority of 240,000 tons over the Italian fleet so it needs no prophet to foresee that five-power negotiations on figures will promptly collapse. Since everybody on the inside knows this, two explanations of tonight's events insistently present themselves:

One is that the Franco-British agreement in principle is designed, probably chiefly designed by M. Briand, to throw responsibility for a five-power failure on Italy. The other conjecture is that the British have lent themselves to this scheme in the belief that relations with France will be improved if, as M. Briand wishes, the political formula interpreting British obligations under the covenant and the Locarno treaties can be carried to Geneva for further discussions there after this naval conference adjourns.

Technical Advances Made.

While Franco-British negotiations in the political field dominated interest tonight, important technical progress was made today by committees working at high pressure both in smoothing out the remaining obstacles to the Anglo-American-Japanese agreement and in settling submarine controversies.

The final draft of an agreement for humanization of submarine warfare was approved by committee No. 1.

The declaration, which is to become part of the established rules of international law and is to be opened to ratification of all government, follows:

"The undersigned, duly authorized on behalf of their respective governments, hereby make the following declaration:

"The following are accepted as established rules of international law:

Submarines Are Regulated.

"1. In their action with regard to merchant ships, submarines must conform to the rule of international law to which surface warships are subject.

"2. In particular, except in case of persistent refusal to stop on being duly summoned or of active resistance to visit or search, warships, whether surface vessels or submarines, may not sink or render incapable of navigation a merchant vessel without having first placed the passengers, crew and ship's papers in a place of safety. For this purpose ship's boats are not regarded as places of safety unless the safety of passengers and crew is assured in existing sea and weather conditions by proximity of land or presence of another vessel which is in a position to take them aboard."

This declaration was adopted subject only to the tough question that remains to be defined—what is a merchantman, the class of ship entitled to immunities described in the agreement?

Submarines' Size Agreed to.

Committee No. 1, by deferring to French wishes on almost every point, also reached agreement on the unit size of submarines. These are to be restricted to a maximum size of 2,000 tons each, excepting that the French insisted upon retaining their 2,880-ton "Surcouf," already building, and on building two other 2,800-ton submarines. The other powers, therefore, also retain the right to build three supersubmarines.

In return for this concession France agreed to restrict the size of guns on submarines to 5 inches, excepting in the case of the supersubmarines, which committee No. 1 agreed, in the face of insistence by Rene Massigli, representing France, can carry 6-inch guns.

The United States made an important suggestion today to end the complicated row about airplane carriers, which was reported to a new subcommittee of experts with instructions to report back within 48 hours. It is thought that the experts will probably agree with American wishes.

U. S. Balks at Light Tonnage.

The United States, having two big airplane carriers, the former battle cruisers Saratoga and Lexington, refuses to agree to light tonnage in this category, as the other powers desire, because we want to build smaller experimental airplane carriers. The General Board of the Navy, on the other hand, may not want to build as many 6-inch gun small cruisers as are allotted under the three-power agreement.

Accordingly, the Americans suggested today that ships under 10,000 tons and mounting guns of a 6-inch maximum may be termed airplane carriers and may be taken out of the light cruiser category by transfer of tonnage for this purpose. If this is agreed to, as seems likely, the dispute will be ended to American satisfaction.

American-Japanese conversations continued today and the United States agreed that Japan may replace light cruisers and destroyers earlier than was contemplated in order to keep the Japanese dockyards busy. Light cruisers may be replaced when sixteen years old and destroyers when twelve years old.

One Controversy Remains.

The only American-Japanese controversy remaining, and the most difficult—the submarine question—will be tackled tomorrow. Japan wants the right to replace 20,000 tons of submarines before the treaty expires in six years and the Americans oppose this strongly.

The Japanese demand to be allowed to transfer destroyer tonnage into submarines also meets with objections. As the Japanese have had their way in most other matters brought forward since the mistermed "agreement" of a month ago, it is thought they will reduce their submarine demands concerning which the Americans feel strongly.

There was a dispute at a meeting of the British Empire delegation this morning over Mr. MacDonald's security formula negotiations with Briand. Australia, New Zealand and Canada all protested and hints were uttered that these dominions have votes at Geneva and are prepared to carry their opposition to MacDonald to the League of Nations, if necessary. These dominions strongly object to any further interpretations which might increase the danger of Great Britain being involved in a European war.

COMMITTEE TOLD OF NAVY AIR PLANS

Declaration of Program to Modernize Equipment Is Outlined in Hearing.

WILLIAMS CITES SERVICE

(Associated Press.)

Formal declaration by the Navy that it is experimenting to keep its planes up to most modern standards followed testimony yesterday by Lieut. Alford J. Williams that he resigned from the service because he felt duty bound to continue experimentation with his mercury racer out of the Navy, after he had been ordered to sea.

Lieut. Williams made the declaration at the end of a two-hour recital before a subcommittee of the Senate naval affairs committee reviewing his thirteen years in the Navy.

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics, and other officials, were among the spectators at the committee's hearing on a resolution calling for investigation of the reason for the United States' lagging behind in development of fast pursuit and bombing planes.

Private Funds Obtained.

Recounting successful efforts to obtain private funds for experimentation on planes to represent the United States in international competition, in which other nations had government sponsored planes, Lieut. Williams told the committee that he had collected $30,000 from the public for experimentation on the racer that failed to take the air in tests for the Schneider Cup races last fall.

After that he was ordered to sea, Lieut. Williams said, but he received a four months' stay. It would have required about a year, he said, to complete rebuilding of the racer.

"I have a pretty good sense of responsibility," Lieut. Williams told the committee, adding that he felt duty-bound to continue his work with the plane "in the Navy or out."

Statement by Department.

The Navy Department issued a formal statement explaining that "the United States Navy is conducting experiments today with a ship of a later design owned by the British royal air forces. It is virtually inferior to the standard Navy planes in use."

Explaining that the information was of special interest "in view of the Tydings resolution," the department recalled the death of Lieut. George Cuddihy, that resulted from a test in this connection.

The statement added that the Navy is "now conducting experiments to keep the Navy planes as modern and efficient as possible."

Albert Weber, justice of the peace, performed the ceremony. Obtaining the marriage license here, she gave her age as 30. The bridegroom, whose age is the same, lives in New York. The bride's second husband was Lieut. Benjamin Manning.

'LIAR' EVOKES 'COWARD' IN LOBBY QUIZ CLASH

iels," the senator explained, "because when I suggested that you were a member of the national committee a few days ago your colleagues denied it."

Mr. Raskob had testified that he did not know that Mr. Daniels had ever served on the committee.

The senator then read Mr. Daniels' editorial. It said that Mr. Raskob had a perfect right to contribute to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, but that he had no right to be identified with this organization and remain as Democratic national chairman. It charged that the debt incurred by the party as the result of the campaign was Mr. Raskob's fault and that he should now pay up and resign.

"Does that represent your view?" the senator asked after reading the editorial, still rubbing his hands.

"I object," interjected Senator Walsh of Montana. Senator Caraway, incidentally, was not present.

"Why, aren't you going to let this prominent Democrat give his view?" queried Senator Robinson, gleefully.

"Not if I can prevent it," replied Senator Walsh, evenly, explaining that he objected because the question had no "relation to the subject at hand."

"Well, leave it there," agreed Mr. Robinson. "Mr. Daniels, are these facts, to the best of your knowledge, true"

"They are."

Three women dry workers clapped their hands, whereupon Senator Walsh warned that he would clear the room if the demonstration was repeated.

Senator Robinson, making no effort to restrain the good time he was having, observed that the "warning came rather late."

Mr. Daniels Cites Editorial.

The senator then stated that Mr. Raskob had testified that the purpose of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was to elect wets regardless of party. Then, clearing his throat and looking very profound, he asked:

"Therefore, Mr. Daniels, it would appear that theoretically Mr. Raskob, as a director of the association, would be for a Republican wet as against a Democratic dry. Is that your understanding?"

"It is. The reason I wrote the editorial—I thought nobody should be a member of the Democratic national committee and give money to anybody except a Democrat."

"That's all," said Senator Robinson

"That's all," said Senator Walsh.

And Mr. Daniels' trip to Washington costing about $50 and requiring two nights and a day was at an end.

Pierce Returns to Stand.

It was then that J. E. Pierce, publisher of the Huntsville (Ala.) Times, down in the Muscle Shoals belt, returned to the stand. He had been on previously and had enjoyed his experience immensely. He was a big fellow with his hair brushed back with a masculine bob after the fashion of the late Senator La Follette, and he wore a big black, broad-rimmed hat somewhat like the one Senator Heflin used to wear when he first came to Congress, only much broader of brim.

He was quite airy and talked with the confidence of one who molds public opinion. It was about the molding of opinion of Huntsville folk against Government operation of Muscle Shoals and in favor of the offer of the American Cyanamid Co. that the committee wanted to talk with him.

Under examination by Senator Walsh he frequently made little sly cracks and then would turn around to the audience and laugh. And the audience would laugh and everybody agreed that he was a sketch. When he left the stand temporarily he strutted like a peacock and the crowd applauded.

Black Enters Picture.

When he came back it was into the hands of Senator Black, who comes from Alabama and knows him.

In prosecuting-attorney fashion Mr. Black pretty soon had Mr. Pierce squirming. He developed the inference—Mr. Pierce's own term—that the publisher had favored Government ownership of Muscle Shoals until the syanamid lobbyists had given him $1,000 "advance" expense check and taken subscriptions to his paper aggregating $500.

Senator Black kept pounding home this inference until Mr. Pierce rose in his seat.

Calling attention to this inference, he said:

"Senator, I want to say that Senator Black is a contemptible liar."

"Well, now," observed Senator Black imperturbably, "we can settle that on the outside."

"Let's go out right now and settle it," replied the publisher.

More Names Are Hurled.

"Oh, there's plenty of time for that. Why, everybody in Alabama knows that you are a coward," pursued Senator Black. Then the publisher said the senator was a "contemptible liar" and a "contemptible cur."

Senator Walsh intervened at this juncture with Mr. Pierce shouting "You don't know this man Black ——."

Everybody waited after the hearing to see what would happen. Senator Black gathered up his papers leisurely on one side of the table and the fighting Alabama publisher gathered up his slowly on the other side, each watching the other out of the corner of his eye. Trying to measure his departure so as not to give the appearance of haste and yet not throw his senatorial dignity away by inviting a brawl, Mr. Black walked slowly from the room.

Newspapermen gathered around Mr. Pierce. Senator Robinson started toward him laughingly remarking: "I like that fellow, he's a hard-hitter."

Just as Mr. Robinson approached him, Mr. Pierce said boastfully:

"Why that fellow Black, he fights behind a sheet. I fight in the open."

Whereupon, Senator Robinson, realizing he had misjudged his man, turned upon his heels and walked away. The Ku Klux Klan sent both Mr. Black and Mr. Robinson to the Senate.

Mr. Pierce is related by marriage to Senator Heflin. He contended that the $1,000 was for expenses that had already been incurred.

Getting back to that Raskob business, the Georgia delegation in Congress received letters from the W. C. T. U. of their State asking them to take up Mr. Daniels' demand that Mr. Raskob resign. None of them intend to answer it if it can be avoided. The letter was signed by Mrs. Marvin Williams, president, and who, in the trying times of 1928, bolted and was a Hoover elector.

"Why should she be worrying about the Democratic party?" the Georgians asked privately, but not publicly.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 8 (A.P.).—Louis Little, attorney for Mrs. Bertha Jones, who filed a suit for $100,000 damages, charging Frances Williams, star of George White's "Scandals," with alienating the affections of her husband, Alan Jones, today said that a tentative agreement had been reached.

Jones is the pianist in the show, "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

Mexican Rebel Chiefs Killed by Firing Squad

Mexico City, April 8 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Durango today said that the irregular rebel leaders, Juan Rodriguez and Luis Betancourt, had been executed by a firing squad after a summary court-martial at the village of Ferreria, just over the line in the State of Zacatecas.

The rebels refused to allow their eyes to be bandaged and died shouting defiance. Their capture and execution followed a skirmish near Ferreris in which Federal troops routed 150 rebels.

JUSTICE, DRY BUREAU CLASH ON HOME RIAD

Tilt Features Hearing Held by Senate District Committee.

DETECTIVES ALSO HEARD

"Nothing arouses me more than an unwarranted invasion of a private home," Judge Britt said, "but I can't see any objection to the senator's bill on the score of its authority."

Judge Britt also split with Mr. Youngquist on a provision in the bill which would prevent the return to the owner of liquor which has been illegally seized. Judge Britt felt that in view of court decision, this provision was justified, but Mr. Youngquist felt that it would abridge a citizen's constitutional rights.

Both men approved the provision that would give to all of the 1,300-odd policemen here the powers of prohibition agents. At present, such powers are held only by 38 members who have been specially deputized.

Police Sergeants Testify.

Two of the policemen who have such authority were witnesses at yesterday's hearing. They were Sergt. George Little and Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, who are in charge of the city's liquor squads.

Sergt. Little told the committee of the difficulty he has in making arrests for liquor violations because of legal obstacles, and urged that a provision be incorporated in the bill which would make it easier to arrest bootleggers and rumrunners in automobiles.

At the suggestion of Chairman Capper, Senator Howell agreed to confer with Sergt Little and discuss the advisability of drafting such a provision.

Letterman Gives Views.

Sergt. Letterman told the committee, in response to a question by Chairman Capper, that there are "several hundred" persons here engaged in the liquor interests.

Sergt. Little declared at this juncture that enforcement here had improved 50 per cent in the last year. He also told the committee that rumrunners have "spotters" in Police Court.

When these spotters see members of the two rum squads in court, he said, they notify the rumrunners, and the latter take advantage of the situation to bring liquor into the city.

Finance Companies Interested.

Sergt. Letterman was not so enthusiastic about the provision to give all policemen the powers of prohibition agents. In his opinion, he said, the policemen would be in each other's way. What was really needed, he said, was to speed up court action on prohibition cases and to make it easier to raid places that are known to harbor speakeasies.

Nathan Williams, of the National Association of Finance Companies, urged the committee to include in the bill a provision which would protect dealers when automobiles they have unwittingly sold to bootleggers, are seized by the police.

While none of the senators at yesterday's meeting expressed himself on the home-raid provision of the bill, observers gathered the impression that the drys among them were in favor of it.

Provision of Howell Bill.

Mr. Youngquist pointed out that under the Volstead act it was necessary for an officer to purchase liquor in a dwelling before he could obtain a warrant to raid that dwelling.

Under the Howell bill, he said, an officer, in order to get a raid warrant, would only have to know that liquor had been taken to a dwelling or away from a dwelling. This he thought would subject the District to more "rigorous treatment" than other cities.

Senator Jones pointed out that many of the States have laws just as drastic, and Youngquist agreed with him. The latter stated, however, that it was the desire of the Department of Justice that prohibition laws enacted by Congress be kept uniform.

Judge Britt on Stand.

In response to a question by Senator Vandenberg, he said that the home raid provision would develop prejudice against the entire law.

From the standpoint of Senator Howell, Judge Britt was much the better witness. The counsel of the Prohibition Bureau agreed that, in order to cope with the bootlegger's "technique" in storing his liquor one place and selling it from another, it is necessary to extend the search and seizure provisions of the law.

"If it is a fact," Howell asked, "that a bootlegger uses a private dwelling as a sanctuary for his goods, shouldn't there be some method of entering that dwelling?"

Term "Lawful" Underscored.

"Unquestionably, there should be some way to make a lawful entrance," Judge Britt replied. "And I want to underscore lawful."

Judge Britt agreed with Senator Copeland that the churches and the schools were at fault in not having continued to teach temperance to the young.

He also agreed with Senator Vandenberg that a propaganda has been built up in this country which leads people to think that there is a sort of esprit de corps in breaking the Volstead act.

Alleged Jewel Robber Is Held to Grand Jury

Samuel Jones, colored, 29 years old, of H street northwest, near Eighteenth street, who was apprehended Sunday, allegedly while in the act of burglarizing the Charles Schwartz Sons jewelry store, at 708 Seventh street northwest, was arraigned yesterday in Police Court and was ordered held for action of the grand jury to answer a charge of housebreaking. Bond was fixed at $3,000.

Jones was caught hiding under a counter when detectives searched the store after a burglar alarm had been set off. The man is said to have had $1,500 worth of jewelry in his pockets when captured.

and agree together to violate . . . sections 2, 3, 6 and 25 of title 2 of the national prohibition act, that is to say, did unlawfully agree together to manufacture, have, possess, sell and transport intoxicating liquor, containing one-half of 1 per cent or more of alcohol by volume, and fit for beverage purposes."

The warrant charges that all the persons named agreed to operate a still near Riverdale, Md. Lerner, Clark, Philadelphia Jake, Morris, Harbin and Kushner are alleged to have patricipated in the operation of the still and the distribution of the liquor so produced. After the distillation, it is charged, Clark, Harbin, Lerner and Morris "directed, controlled and transported" liquor to a house on Franklin street, in Hyattsville, Md.

From that alleged depot the warrant sets out that the Mendelsons, Beasley, McNichols, and Ahern transported or controlled the transportation of the liquor to a house on Fourteenth street northwest, near Meridian place. The liquor then was distributed to the other places in Washington by Crogan, Baker, Chartres, Shield, McNichols, Saunders, Lerner, Mendelson and Gordon, the warrant recites. From these establishments the liquor was then retailed, it is stated.

The other places to which the liquor is said to have been taken from the Fourteenth street house are located on Spring road northwest, near Fourteenth street; on Newton street northwest, near Fourteenth street, and on Ontario road northwest near Lanier place.

Depufy Marshals John J. Clarkson, Gus Cerimele, Harry Allen, Tom East and Elmer Graves are assisting in the round-up.

Milton S. Kronheim, professional bondsman, went surety on the bonds of Mendelson and Beasley.

Date Sticks

good for youngsters

(Mixing time: 10 minutes)

One mother I know realizes that her children need sweets. So she provides home-made confections like these Date Sticks which satisfy the craving for sweets in a wholesome way. As nearly as possible all of the fuss and bother have been kitchen-tested out of Crisco recipes and a satisfaction added—the satisfaction of using a modern shortening which lends its own fresh flavor to the foods made with it.

¼ cup Crisco
1½ cups sugar
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
¾ teaspoon soda
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nut meats
1 cup cut dates
powdered sugar

Mix Crisco and sugar well. Add sour milk which has been mixed with soda. Then add flour which has been sifted with salt and baking powder, and fold in nuts and dates. Pour into shallow Criscoed pan and bake 20 minutes in moderate (350° F.) oven. Cut into narrow slices while still warm and roll in powdered sugar. These cookies will take the place of less wholesome sweets for the children.

* * *

This recipe has been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

Taste Crisco's sweet, fresh flavor

You taste milk. You test eggs. Now, taste Crisco—then any other shortening. Then you'll understand why Crisco's own sweet, fresh flavor so improves the taste of your cakes, pies, hot breads, cookies and fried foods.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

A lovely, clear skin, is within your reach

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends, more invitations—more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely, clear skin, is within the reach of all. To you who have lost it, hope is offered, that you, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

The natural way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood nourishes the body and works against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there would be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders, take a few bottles of S.S.S.

AMERICA'S NEIGHBORS.

With one exception the relations between the United States and Latin-American republics are closer and more cordially sympathetic than ever before. Among the republics there is the best of feeling, with the same exception. The composition of the Tacna-Arica dispute has drawn Chile and Peru into especially friendly relations, which are already bringing mutual benefits in growth of commerce and interchange of travel and communications. The quarrel between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Chaco region has been followed by a better understanding, thanks to the good offices of Uruguay, and there is now warrant for the hope that the differences may be adjusted by direct negotiation.

In spite of the action of Congress in increasing the duty upon sugar Cuba has met a disheartening situation with good grace. That republic is confident that relations will be so adjusted finally as to insure against the economic collapse of the island. A revision of the reciprocity treaty is hoped for, by which means will be found to facilitate the exchange of commodities.

Cuba feels that Congress, engrossed in the domestic aspects of tariff revision, did not take into full account the political consequences of an increased sugar duty. The island republic is still the child of the United States, dependent upon the parent for protection, at least until such time as it is economically independent. The best interests of the United States call for enlightened dealing with Cuba, for the sake of tranquillity. If it is to be made impossible for Cuba to flourish by furnishing sugar to the United States other means must be found for sustaining the country in order to prevent its collapse and the inevitable consequent American intervention. The working out of a new basis of economic relations seems to be the logical step to take. This step can not be long delayed if the adverse effects of the increased American duty on sugar should be as great as are now apprehended.

The election of Dr. Enrique Olaya Herrera as President of Colombia tends to strengthen the friendly ties between Colombia and the United States. Dr. Olaya, as Minister to the United States, has familiarized himself with all phases of American life. He is thoroughly acquainted with this country and with its true attitude toward neighboring republics. He knows that Colombia can avail itself of American capital in developing the country and expanding its commerce. The legislation that would facilitate this cooperation needs modification and improvement, which President-elect Olaya may be able to effect.

Between the United States and Brazil there is the most cordial friendship and understanding. The two great republics have similar problems of internal development and can exchange views on these subjects to their mutual advantage. Dom Julio Prestes, President-elect of Brazil, is soon to visit the United States. He is assured of a warm welcome from the President and people of this country.

The reluctance of the present Argentine government to cooperate in the promotion of a better understanding among the republics of this hemisphere is a matter of regret to Americans. The good understanding will continue, whatever Argentina may do, but the continued slights to other countries can not fail to react upon the welfare and prestige of Argentina. Already Uruguay has taken away the leadership of Argentina in the work of reconciling Paraguay and Bolivia, and all three of those countries are disappointed by Argentina's attitude. The failure of Argentina to send an ambassador to the United States is noted with regret by Americans, and their desire to cultivate friendly relations is not encouraged by the bitterly hostile attacks of a portion of the Argentine press in discussing America's dealings with Haiti, Nicaragua and Mexico.

With Mexico the United States is on friendly terms, while waiting patiently for proof that the Mexican government appreciates the necessity of adjusting outstanding questions affecting American citizens. President Ortiz Rubio has an excellent opportunity to translate Mexican assurances into something tangible for the relief of Americans who have suffered from aggressions in Mexico.

TARIFF IN CONFERENCE.

In spite of attempts of certain minority conferees to cause trouble the tariff conference committee is making rapid progress. Nearly one-fourth of the 1,253 changes that the Senate made in the House bill have been disposed of. The committee aims to complete its work in three weeks. In view of the impending controversies over a few rates and the administrative features, the time allotted may be too short, but if the present rate of progress is maintained, the end of the protracted controversy is in sight.

Compromises have been struck between the Senate and the House rates on the schedules thus far considered without great difficulty. In some instances the conferees have recognized that the House went too far in the direction of absolute protection, and duties of this kind are either being reduced to the rate voted by the Senate or midway between the two. In other cases the deficiencies of the Senate bill are being corrected by accepting the House rates. The raids of the Democratic-Insurgent coalition on the American protective system are being nullified by the common sense of the conferees.

An example in point is the duty on pig iron. Three years ago the Tariff Commission found that the pig iron industry was suffering from undue foreign competition, and President Coolidge made use of the flexible provision to increase the duty from 75 cents per ton to $1.12½. The House accepted this rate, which was based on a scientific study of the needs of the industry, and allowed it to stand, but the Senate coalition forced through an amendment to restore the 75-cent rate. The conferees have now reestablished the rate fixed by President Coolidge.

The conference committee has an opportunity to make the bill entirely acceptable to the American people. Protection of American industry, agriculture and labor has the support of the great majority. Fortunately a majority of the conferees are believers in adequate protection. They have the task of harmonizing a bill pushed through the House by the Republican majority and a bill distorted by the outbreak of insurgency in the Senate. Each of the bills is obviously imperfect. Sectional interests, political influence, fanaticism, idealistic economic theory and many other factors enter into a tariff bill written by either chamber. It is the duty of the conferees to round off the rough edges, to adjust the inequalities, strike out the monstrosities, and bring the two measures into complete harmony.

Indications are that when the conferees are ready to turn the tariff bill back to their respective chambers it will meet with public approval. It is to be assumed that the flexible provision as adopted by the House will be retained and the coalition's pet debenture clause will be removed. These two features in the Senate bill are repugnant to the President as well as to the people. They do not have the personal support of the leading Senate conferees. When they are deleted and protection for industries that came under the coalition's knife has been restored, the bill will be ready for the President. Another era of advancement for American enterprise will be in store, and the Republican party will need no apology for the tariff measure it has written.

INDIA UNITING.

At Borsad, early in his march to the sea where he defied the government by manufacturing salt in contravention of the salt laws, Mahatma Gandhi delivered a bitter speech in which he said he made it his religion to destroy the government. He had become convinced, he said, that the government was so monstrous that it was a sin to allow it to exist longer. He did not mind if he were considered a revolutionary to this extent—that sedition had become his religion. He expected lifelong imprisonment, but he was sure that the government's days were numbered. It is the spirit exemplified in this speech that makes Britain's present problem in India so difficult. Through the years, Gandhi has assiduously cultivated in the minds of his followers a concept of what amounts to a holy war for political freedom. The result is apparent in India today.

When Gandhi scooped up sea water from which he extracted salt, bands of "peaceful revolutionaries" on a wide front did likewise. Some of the leaders were arrested, but always a trained lieutenant was ready to take the place of the one arrested. Salt is being gathered and manufactured in defiance of the monopoly generally in India. Contraband salt is being hawked in the streets of the towns and villages. But salt is only an incidental in the campaign of civil disobedience. Gandhi has ordered the resignation of officials, a boycott of government schools and of foreign textiles. He contemplates general noncooperation with the government, culminating in refusal to pay taxes. Disorders have occurred in which Indians have been killed and injured as officials have attempted to arrest the salt law violators. Greater disorder is bound to result as the full program of disobedience is put into effect.

British troops and police, it is said, are not showing their traditional energy in dealing with the situation. They could not be expected to. Gandhi counsels nonviolence. The nationalists refuse to fight back and troops can not be brought to fight efficiently against an adversary who refuses to retaliate. But beneath the peaceful exterior that characterizes the nationalist movement there smoulders grim hatred that may flare forth into armed resistance at any moment. Gandhi has launched a movement that promises to unite the India that has been divided in religious faith, by customs and by castes.

DR. WILLIAM HENRY WELCH.

America has never been backward in acclaiming its heroes, its adventures and its statesmen. But like every other organized society it sometimes neglects its scientists, inventors and other intellectuals who work in obscurity. It is a universal human failing to hail daring, meteoric achievements, and pay little attention to the results of patient research even though the benefits from the latter source may be far more substantial.

For 80 years Dr. William Henry Welch has been devoting his energies to the welfare of the country. His life has been rich with achievement, but he has seldom departed from the obscurity of the laboratory and the classroom. His name has been little known, but his discoveries have saved thousands from pain and death, his probing into the realm of the unknown has brought new light into the world, and his genius for teaching has made the widest possible application of his learning to human health. In the words of President Hoover, Dr. Welch is America's "greatest statesman in the field of public health."

The very nature of his work demands that the scientist play his part behind the scenes. Great scientific truths are seldom discovered and taught to the public by one individual. One intellect usually lays the foundation and many others build upon it. All of them keep in the background, because their work is technical and not easily understood. Knowledge uncovered by a pure scientist is often made applicable to human needs by some one else, and the public frequently remains ignorant of its debt to the quiet laboratory worker. It is the happy lot of Dr. Welch to have emerged from the field of medical research to practical application of the science he did so much to foster.

The country does well to honor him on his eightieth birthday. As the years pass and Dr. Welch's work assumes a still more important place in medical science there will be regret that his service was not acclaimed until so late in the evening of his life. When science claims its rightful place among human activities the world will not be so belated in its tributes to a genius who has devoted his life to the welfare of humanity.

Science has developed a cotton sandwich. That's the kind they used to serve on Sunday school picnics.

RAW CARROTS!

From the Christian Science Monitor.

"Are these the choice dishes the doctor has sent us?" inquired David Garrick in satiric comment upon a work of Oliver Goldsmith's. His query seems apt when applied to the assault upon the art of cooking, exalted by epicures from the days of Brillat-Savarin to those of George Rector, by a medico described in the papers as "the House physician." The "House" is that body of statesmen which convenes at the south end of the National Capitol and legislates while the Senate, at the other end, talks. Mortification of the flesh seems to engage the thoughts of its members. A body which once knew the rotundity of "Tom" Reed, the portliness of Sereno Payne, and the globular grandeur of "Billy" Mason now, like the fashionable matron, seeks to "reduce." From the Aesculapian authority in office comes this ghastly travesty upon a meal, whereby that end may be attained:

Mold of tomato aspic with vegetables (raw carrots, raw cabbage, chopped small), rye, toast, Philadelphia cream cheese, baked apple, choice of drinks.

A Barmecide's feast indeed!

It was not so in the olden time. When Grover Cleveland sat for his second term in the White House he appreciated the wisdom of having a well-fed and contented Congress on his hands. "Let me have men about me that are fat," said he, drawing wisdom from Rome's great Caesar. From the editorial staff of the New York Sun he summoned to Washington a writer whose gastronomic fame had won for him the title "Terrapin Tom" Murray. 'Twas said in Baltimore, where knowledge on the subject should have been exact, that those diamond-back reptiles knew so well the savory charms of the dishes into which he could convert them that they came crowding about him from their sedgy lairs beseeching his aid in their apotheosis a la Maryland. The President called the gourmet to his support, made him manager of the Senate restaurant and history recalls no obstructionary blocs, no irreconcilables, no tariff bills lagging superfluous for long months in the Senate of his day.

A shrewd observer of the intimate relations existing between good statesmanship and good digestion, between patriotism and provender, was Tom. It was the era when Populists first showed their unaccustomed forms in the United States Senate. When Peffer, of Kansas, buttoning, as was his wont, his three-foot beard beneath his waistcoat, squared his elbows before a bowl of bean soup, the watchful chef would send up word to Nelson Aldrich in the Senate that for half an hour the forces of plutocracy might do their worst unvexed by Populistic opposition. And when Ben Tillman, eschewing for the moment his frugal apple and milk, came down with his queerly chosen intimate, Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, and studied the more exotic dishes of the menu, "Tom" would tell the press boys that an era of good feeling was on in the Senate and they might themselves take life easy. It has always been held as a sacred tradition by those who enjoyed the confidences of "Terrapin Tom" that Senator Foraker, of Ohio, would never have won his sobriquet of "Fire Alarm" had he not, incautiously, partaken of cold boiled lobster and buttermilk just before a speech on the political methods of Southern Democrats.

But none of the epicurean eccentricities of those days in Congress can compare with the shocking compound with which the House physician today would affront the statesmanly stomach. Raw carrots! Raw cabbage!! Tomato aspic!!! Are the solons of Washington seeking to demonstrate that civilized man can live without cooks?

HERE AND THERE.

Differences between the King's English and American usage, which strike the American traveler as amusing, have caused some complications for the secretaries of the American delegation to the London naval conference, according to the New York Evening Post. The British "telephonist" employs an altogether different set of expressions from her American counterpart, the "operator." A busy line brings forth the statement, "The line is engaged." When a connection is made, the expression is "You are through," which means that your connection is through and not "Your time is up; please deposit another nickel."

"Hold on there," is used for "Hold the wire." When a call is uncompleted it is announced as "ineffective." A call which is completed "matures." "Information" becomes an "inquiry desk." "They do not answer" is transformed into the more formal, "There is no reply." An "operating room" is called a "switch room" and "long distance" is "trunk exchange." When lines are "out of order" in New York they are "not working" in London. For telephone calls the "charges" in America become "fees" in London. For what Americans usually designate as "talking" over the telephone, with the British is "speaking."

A marble statue said,
"I mark a human being great
Now sleeping with the dead,
My brother of an earlier state
Is a floor where mortals tread.

Two blocks of marble gray,
And neither of us then could know
How long we thus should stay
Nor what the future should bestow,
But here am I today.

A Stradivarius Violin Produces Only Jazz for a Jazz Player.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT frequently happens that marriage fails in the same sense that pearls fail when cast before swine.

To the gross mind the mating of a man and a woman is in no sense different from the casual mating of brutes.

It is a biological function required by Nature—nothing more.

But marriage differs from mating in the same degree that men differ from cattle, and that difference has been apparent to the people of all lands in all ages.

The instinct that prompts the races of men to worship a god prompts them also to recognize marriage as a sacred contract, deserving and requiring the benediction of their religion.

And true marriage is religious, for it unites two souls and blends two personalities that collaborate with the Creator to produce a third soul that may serve as an instrument to change the destiny of mankind.

When a young man and a young woman stand before their families and friends and pledge themselves to love and cherish one another, in sickness and in health, until death shall part them, and thus devote themselves to the happy adventure of building a fortune and a family—working and growing together until in wise and compassionate old age they leave the world better than they found it, they have known the abundant life and have achieved the highest destiny of mankind.

And this sex union and experience is so natural and so necessary that to vary it in any detail is to lessen the dignity and profit and joy of it.

Those who marry secretly or furtively are cheated of some majesty and benediction, and their ability to undertake the adventure so lightly reveals a lack of understanding that will keep their union far short of the ideal.

Even those who begin their married life with riches will miss much of the joy of natural marriage, for the natural way is to begin with little except hope and courage and build by helping one another.

Those who miss the joy of building a home are but one degree more fortunate than those who deny themselves children.

The artificiality of modern life robs marriage of many of its natural joys and benefits, but its dignity and sacredness remain for those who have the capacity to understand its nature.

When it is made a casual sex experience, lightly undertaken, it fails for the same reason that a cathedral fails to impress the blind. They are incapable of seeing the wonder of it.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. AND MRS. COOLIDGE LOOK OVER THE NEW HOME.

Mrs. Coolidge (as they enter the grounds of The Beeches)—Oh, Calvin, isn't it just beautiful? Isn't it too lovely for words?

Calvin—Yep.

Mrs. Coolidge—Just think of it! Nine acres of land and all landscaped perfectly! Did you ever see anything more charming?

Calvin—Nope.

Mrs. Coolidge—Look at those exquisite beech trees—80 of them.

Calvin—How many?

Mrs. Coolidge—Eighty, the agent said.

Calvin—That's a lot o' beech trees.

Mrs. Coolidge—And right over there is the outdoor swimming pool. Isn't it gorgeous?

Calvin (peering into the pool)—It's nice. But it must run up the water bill pretty steep.

* * * *

Mrs. Coolidge—And just look at the delightful rose gardens. Won't they be gorgeous in full bloom this June?

Calvin—Shouldn't wonder.

Mrs. Coolidge—And there are vegetable gardens, too, over there to the east. The asparagus beds have been widely commented on. Don't you think they are nice?

Calvin—I wouldn't want to say. I don't know much about asparagus beds.

Mrs. Coolidge—And see those fine tennis courts!

Calvin—They don't mean anything to me, but I s'pose some of the boys from the insurance company may like 'em.

Mrs. Coolidge—Now let's get into the house and give it a good inspection.

Calvin—How many rooms has it?

Mrs. Coolidge — Sixteen rooms. Think of that!

Calvin—That's a lot of rooms. Take a lot of furniture, I guess.

Mrs. Coolidge—Yes; we'll have to order a load of things, of course. You won't mind, will you?

Calvin—Mebbe not.

Mrs. Coolidge—Isn't this an enormous living room? We'll have to get a big rug for it.

Calvin—Can't we use one from the old house?

Mrs. Coolidge—Certainly not, Calvin. We'll have to have new rugs throughout the house.

Calvin—For all sixteen rooms?

Mr. Coolidge—I think so.

Calvin (reflectively)—I s'pose it'll be a hard place to heat in winter. How many tons of coal, d'you think?

Mrs. Coolidge—I think the agent said the last owner burned about 30 tons a season.

* * * *

Calvin—We'll have to have quite a few servants in a big house like this too, won't we.

Mrs. Coolidge—Four or five, probably.

Calvin (turning away)—Well, I'll get along home.

Mrs. Coolidge—But why the hurry?

Calvin—I guess I'd better get busy and write a lot of stuff for the magazines.

With telephone service now to all parts of the world, the man is looking for a place where he can not be disturbed is in a tight spot.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

American Labor Market Should Be Preserved for Americans—Mexican Cheap Labor Should Be Barred Out.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A suggestion such as Mr. Teague has made in regard to importing Mexicans into this country to work on the fruit farms in the southwestern part of the country is one that every American citizen should fight down, especially when we have so many of our own citizens out of work. We do not need to have Mexicans imported to this country to do the labor. Mr. Teague states that the Americans will not work on these farms. This statement is not true. There never has been offered to American citizens any kind of employment at which they could earn a decent living wage for themselves and their families that they would not accept.

The big trouble with the owners of the fruit farms is that they are used to having foreign laborers work for them at cheap rates. They can hire foreigners at a cheaper rate than they can Americans. The Mexicans will live in any kind of a lean-to, and they will eat any kind of food that is given to them. The fruit growers are getting good prices for their products today, and therefore should be made to hire American labor at a living wage.

Mr. Teague's suggestion of importing more foreigners into the country under the prevailing unemployment conditions is not what I would call a square deal to the citizens of the United States in regard to labor. This move should be turned down by Congress. Our American citizens must be taken care of first by all means! This is a country of Americans, for Americans, by Americans, and America should come first, in everything with respect to the rights of our citizens, for we are the ones who have made and keep our country what it is today.

Regulation of Buses by Safety Signals a Coming Necessity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in the Sunday Post on "Interstate Bus Traffic" is very interesting, because the subject covers so many far-reaching possibilities. Should the Senate approve the Parker bill and the Interstate Commerce Commission be given authority to regulate interstate transportation by bus and truck, it is not a far stretch of the imagination to see the time when the commission would be given regulatory power over interstate highways, which would include privately owned vehicles.

The writer is not prepared to offer an argument for or against the Parker bill, but it would seem, from the rapidly increasing number of bus lines engaged in interstate commerce, many of them controlled by railroads, that it is only a logical conclusion that sooner or later they must be brought under Federal regulation, because, as you say, the several States can not effectively and uniformly do this.

The improvement of highways throughout the country and the rapidly increasing number and size of buses and the advance to constantly higher speeds produce another problem which may require action by the Federal Government wherever interstate commerce is affected. This problem concerns the public safety. Density of traffic and high speeds carry with them inevitable dangerous conditions. As a rule, buses are expected to make schedule time, especially where they are operating in conjunction with railroads, and it seems to the writer that the day is not far distant when some universal system somewhat comparable to the automatic signal system now in use on railroads will be necessary to safeguard highway travel, especially where intersecting roads cross the highways.

EUGENE R. WEST.

Speeding Up Helps to Relieve Traffic Jams and Averts Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are but two ways of relieving traffic congestion. They are: Increase highway facilities or speed up traffic. States, counties and municipalities are engaged everywhere in road-widening programs, but the press of vehicles becomes greater, seemingly keeping always a jump or two ahead of the relief afforded by widened highways. There is a rather general tendency to raise speed limits so that a greater number of vehicles will be able to use the road area available, but the "slow-poke" driver is everywhere in evidence, holding up long lines of vehicles and causing accidents. The "slow-poke" driver is the greatest menace of the highway.

At Bowie Race Track, toward the end of the afternoon, the following announcement is broadcast through the stands over an amplifying system: "The speed limit on all roads leading out of Bowie is 40 miles an hour. The Maryland State police request motorists to drive at that speed." The average man's idea is that authorities are primarily interested in apprehending those who drive at speeds greater than those arbitrarily set. The Maryland State police announcement at Bowie is looked upon as unusual.

The highway system at Bowie is inadequate during the racing season. But until highway facilities in this area can be expanded, the only way that traffic congestion can be ameliorated is to speed up the movement of vehicles. The Maryland State police are right when they request motorists to drive fast. The fact that the accident rate in the area has not been higher than normal may suggest to the police of other jurisdictions the desirability of speeding up traffic.

TREES MUST HAVE WATER.

Trees need enormous quantities of water to keep them in a healthy condition, says the United States Department of Agriculture. An apple tree 30 years old gives off approximately a barrel of water a day in summer, and a good-sized birch tree gives off nearly two barrels of water on a hot day. A single oak tree is known to have given off into the air in the form of vapor more than 100 tons of water in a single growing season.

CONFEREES ADVANCE RATE ON ALUMINUM

Senate Cut in Automobile Tariff Agreed Upon at Session.

ORE DUTY IS INCREASED

(Associated Press.)

Continuing the adjustment of Senate and House differences over metal tariffs, the conferees on the tariff bill yesterday raised the Senate rates on aluminum but still held them below the level of the present law which the House bill did not disturb.

The Senate cut in the automobile tariff and an increase in the manganese ore levy were agreed upon. The rate on crude aluminum, which the Senate coalition of Democrats and Republican independents had cut from 5 cents a pound, as at present, to the level of the Underwood rate of 1913, or 2 cents, was boosted to 3½ cents.

Sheet aluminum was made dutiable at 7 cents a pound instead of 9 cents now in effect and 3½ cents as provided in the Senate measure. A duty of 8½ cents a pound and 40 per cent was assigned aluminum household utensils as compared with 11 cents a pound and 55 per cent in the existing law and only 25 per cent in the Senate bill.

The Senate rate accepted on automobiles valued at $1,000 or less was 10 per cent. The present duty is 25 per cent.

The manganese ore duty was fixed at 1 cent a pound on the metallic content of ore containing in excess of 10 per cent manganese. The present law applies the levy only to ore having a metallic content of more than 30 per cent.

The paragraphs on watches and clocks, completely revised in the House bill but restored to the present law by the Senate, were passed over for future decision.

Two compromises reached at the morning session resulted in a duty of $2.25 a ton being given sponge or granular iron, which is a reduction from the present duty of 30 per cent; and an additional levy of three-quarters of a cent a pound being placed on hollow drill steel valued at more than 4 cents a pound.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

OXYGEN treatments administered to the Republican organization in New York State by Chairman Huston, just before passing under the lobby committee cloud, do not seem to have had much effect in livening up that moribund and inefficient body.

With a Democratic governor, 2 Democratic senators and 23 of the 43 members of the House, it would not seem to require as much "optimism" to be a Democrat in New York as the old bromide would indicate.

Furthermore, the Republican organization in New York will be fighting for its life this fall, according to present indications, not to make any substantial gains, but to hold its own. Not only is there no particular hope of gaining Republicans in the House there, but actually the G. O. P. is going to have to fight very hard to hold its present twenty members. The Democrats are very cocky about gaining at least two more seats—those now held by Mrs. Ruth Pratt, the Seventeenth District, formerly represented by Ogden L. Mills, and the Twentieth district, now held by Fiorello H. LaGuardia.

* * * *

THE Seventeenth District is always fighting ground. It probably contains more wealth than any other district in the United States, including Riverside drive, upper Fifth avenue and the intervening territory. Yet Representative Pell, Democrat, who preceded Ogden Mills, was fond of saying that only the little tradesmen in the district bothered him about legislation.

"I get more letters from the florists about petty affairs than I do about railroad or trust legislation," he told the writer.

In the LaGuardia district Tammany, after many vain attempts to elect an Irishman against LaGuardia, has recognized the inevitable and decided to put up an Italian. So the wet champion is at least up against a bitter fight. His opponent, of course, will be a wet, so the result will have no real significance from the prohibition standpoint. It merely shows that Tammany Hall, unlike the New York Republican leadership, learns something about putting its head against a stone wall for a given period.

* * * *

THE whole country is interested in the New York fight, not so much because of the possible change of a few members of the House, as because of the effect on the Democratic presidential situation in 1932 that may be caused by the reelection of Franklin D. Roosevelt, elected governor, while Alfred E. Smith was losing the State by 100,000 to Hoover.

Ever since the election of a Democrat from the Second Massachusetts District a few weeks ago in a special election, the Democrats have perked up unbelievably. New York Democrats talk only of gaining the two greater city districts now held by Republicans, but national Democrats are much more optimistic. While terribly careful not to inject the wet and dry issue in their conversations, they are actually hoping it will aid them in half a dozen up-State New York districts, which, they point out, are much the same kind of country as western Massachusetts.

So they are claiming now that they will actually win the House this fall, and, as Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, claims, the Democrats never fail to capture the Presidency two years after they win the House in an off-year election.

Pennsylvania Labors Under Foot of Snow

Harrisburg, April 8 (A.P.).—An April snowfall, which equalled in some sections of Pennsylvania the heaviest of winter, today was giving the State highway department difficulty in keeping the roads open. During the night as much as 12 inches fell in Warren and McKean counties. In the north central section of the State, lighter falls were reported in other districts. More than 100 plows manned by 350 workers battled all night to clear the highways.

GANDHI WILL LEAVE SCENE OF TROUBLES

To Quit Dandi and Continue Independence Drive in Nearby Villages.

UNMOLESTED BY POLICE

Dandi, Bombay Presidency, India, April 8 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi has decided to leave Dandi, where he led the civil disobedience movement by breaking the salt laws Sunday morning, and go to neighboring territory to continue his campaign for Indian independence.

"This is probably the last meeting I shall address here," Gandhi said in a speech tonight. "I have decided to go into the surrounding villages rather than stay here."

Gandhi said that Abbas Tyabji, his second in command, was going to Nadiad to take charge of the Kaira district.

Although Gandhi himself has not been molested, numerous of his assistants and even his son have been given prison sentences for infringing the government salt monopoly, some of them drawing as high as two years.

The British officials are refraining from arresting the venerable Nationalist leader to prevent his attaining the status of a martyr, it is understood.

Bombay, India, April 8 (A.P.).—While some of his chief lieutenants have been arrested and his son sentenced to six months' imprisonment for breaking the salt laws, Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, has yet to be molested by the police in his civil disobedience campaign.

The mahatma, who began the campaign by the illegal manufacture of salt on Sunday, produced salt again today, but there were no police at the scene near the village of Aat on the Gulf of Cambay. A crowd of about 8,000 had gathered in the belief that Gandhi might be arrested, but when no attempt was made to interfere with him, thethrong dispersed.

Advices from Surat said that Ram Das Gandhi, son of the mahatma, had been sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment for breaking the salt laws at Bhimrad.

Reports from New Delhi said that seven persons were injured at Shahdara during a clash between police and volunteers supporting the civil disobedience campaign.

Greek Politicians Are Sent to Jail

Gen. Pangalos and Aid Are Sentenced for Abuses of Dictatorship.

Athens, Greece, April 8 (A.P.).—Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, who became dictator of Greece in January, 1926, and was elected president several months later, only to fall from power in August, has been condemned to two years' imprisonment with loss of political rights by a senatorial commission appointed to inquire into certain acts of his dictatorship.

He was tried particularly for his part in alleged abuses in connection with gambling concessions granted to a Greek company at Eleusis. His former cabinet minister, M. Vogopoulos, was sent to prison for two and a half years for his share in the same affair.

As Gen. Pangalos has already undergone two and a half years of preventive detention, the sentence is virtually ineffective, but it is expected that he will be deprived of his rank as general.

Sea Parley Talk Given By G. W. U. President

Failure of the London naval arms conference to reach complete agreement upon disarmament should not be viewed as ending hope of a world understanding, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, told the Columbian Women yesterday.

He branded as "vicious" the person who pleads possible failure of the conference as an excuse for a selfish abandonment of efforts toward international understanding. He claimed that "whatever nations meet around the conference table rather than across a trench, progress toward world understanding is bound to be achieved, irrespective of immediate concrete results."

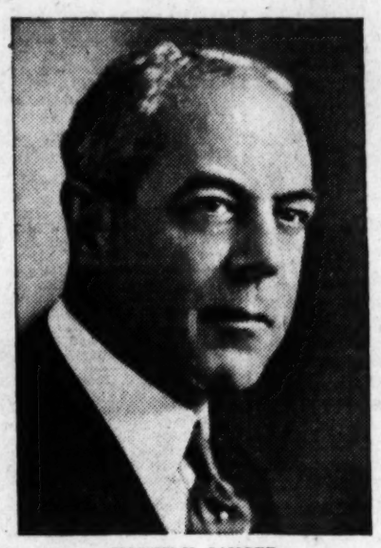
"All Over Town" The Better To Serve You

"In the long run, Copper, Brass and Bronze materials are the wisest choice for home builders" . . .

HENRY H. SANGER



HENRY H. SANGER
President,
National Bank of Commerce, Detroit

WHEN you plan your home, remember that you have to live in it—and maintain it. Sacrificing lasting qualities in materials to save a few dollars at the time of building is poor economy. Bankers know values. Many of them, including Mr. Sanger, advise you to protect yourself from needless maintenance expense by building your home for permanency—with Copper, Brass and Bronze.

Brass or Copper pipe, Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures cannot rust. They give lifetime service in home or skyscraper.

Paying the slightly higher initial cost of these genuine rust-proof materials invariably proves an economy in the long run.

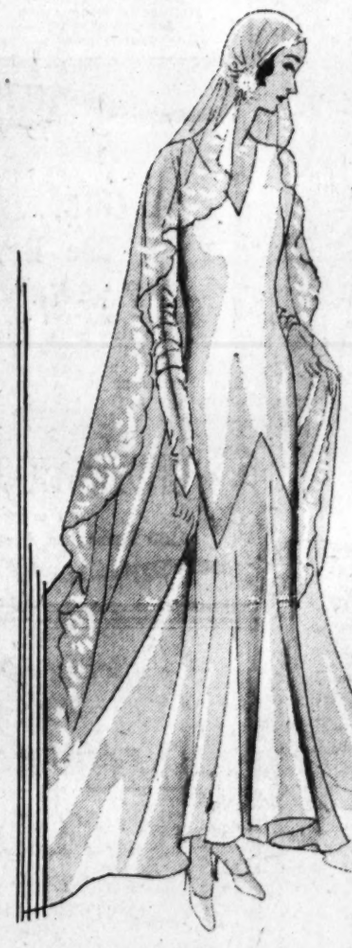
1880 GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY YEAR 1930



The 1930 Bride Goes to the Altar

. . . as a Princesse

. . . in a Directoire gown

. . . in the 1880 manner

Each expresses the personality of the bride with individuality—in a season of great diversity.

The bride's gown is severely simple or demurely young. There is a mysterious quality about her bridal costume—that makes the shimmering folds of the gown, the frozen mist of veil, the actual vestments of the bride's personality. With a sensitive genius the classic princesse gown, the gowns of the Directoire period and of 1880 have been interpreted for each personality.

The costumes for the complete bridal "entourage" are planned for each individual period and may be seen here and ordered in desirable shades.

Capitals Talk Of New Envoy Of Argentina

Rumor Proposes Senor Tornquist as Likely Candidate.

BETWEEN Argentina and the United States flows this week the stream of diplomatic interest as Washington society prepares to welcome Senor Carlos Tornquist, South American capitalist, who will arrive in town on April 15. According to pretty well founded rumor the young attractive Senor Tornquist is slated for the post of Ambassador to the United States. While friends of the popular banker may place the odds in his favor as regards capture of the coveted Washington post they recognize the force of another channel of gossip which places the present foreign minister, Senor Horacio Oyhanarte, well to the fore on the list of possible appointees.

Both men are authorities on the solution of the ever-shifting currency problem, a question paramount in the minds of Argentine experts hoping to raise the exchange values.

And there is a third tide of conjecture drifting from the pen of a confrere who points out the persistent disinclination of President Irigoyen of Argentina to appoint an ambassador to the United States, the embassy here having been directed by a charge d'affaires for a year or more. The journalist recalls that the people of Argentina aren't particularly keen about our tariff policies nor, for that matter, the Monroe Doctrine.

While speculation mounts concerning the next head of the embassy here interest again slips across the equator to center upon the capital of Argentina where, a day or two ago, final negotiations were completed by the United States Government for the purchase of a plot of ground in Buenos Aires which will ultimately boast the finest embassy owned by the United States service.

The property, located on the magnificent new boulevard which cuts diagonally through the business center of Buenos Aires, forms a triangle and faces three streets to occupy more than 5,000 square feet.

Conceded the choice location on the city's most important thoroughfare of the future, the purchase assures to the United States Government a commanding position in the section of the Calle Florida. The building will house the ambassador's offices and those of the military, naval and commercial attaches and the staffs. The offices of the consulate general will be included also in the general plan of the building.

Purchase of a beautiful residence on the Avenida Alvear for the ambassador was made by the Government some time ago.

The site for the offices in Buenos Aires was arrived at only after eighteen months endeavor to select a lot not only centrally located but suitable for the erection of a splendid building in harmony with the Government's program of really fine embassies in South America. The search for a plot was first begun by Representative Linthicum, chairman of the congressional building committe, and Mr. Robert M. Phillips, adviser to the Department of State, who visited Buenos Aires in December, 1928.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column, if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

SHRUBS FOR THE SUNNY GARDEN.

JUST why there is a dearth of shrubbery in so many gardens I have never been able to understand. Surely it cannot be because people do not like it. More likely it is because of lack of space. Of course, in the average city garden—frequently a space reaching from the back door to the back gate, a distance of, possibly, 50 feet, and from a high board fence to high board fence, a distance of at most 30 feet—I must admit shrubbery is out of the question.

This does not mean, however, a bushless garden. Far from it, for in even so small a space, provided you have a rich soil and sunshine, you can have one really fine specimen of almost any of the ordinary shrubs, which when in bloom will be, like Aunt Hannah's patchwork quilt, "gayer than tomorrow."

Shrubs in most cases are not nearly as particular about their environment as most plants; but, even so, they refuse to do their best when planted in an angle between two high board fences, which prevent their receiving either sunshine or fresh air.

When your garden is small, the corner opposite the back gate at the foot of your ground is undoubtedly the best location for a shrub. In this way it will never be in the way of clothes that are being dried, and at the same time it will provide a pleasing vista from the house.

But, as I said before, no shrub will ever do well in an angle of a high board fence. So, if you would have shrubs—and I hope you will—remove the high fence and in its place plant a hedge or use a low iron or wire fence. By removing the high fence you will seemingly be increasing the size of your garden and you will also be adding to its sunshine.

In a sunny garden you have such a wide choice of shrubs, and most of them are reliable varieties. There are, however, eight varieties that I consider well suited for the average city garden.

The first is the azalea hinodegiri, a Japanese variety bearing masses of fiery red blossoms. It is a low-growing shrub which you will be sure to admire.

The second is the old-fashioned lilac, which we all love.

The third is the ever-jubilant forsythia, which unfurls its golden petals as the last snowflakes are melting.

And the fourth is the berberis thunbergia, Japanese barberry.

The fifth variety, spirea Van Houttei, is the most beautiful of all spireas.

Sixth, there is the syringa; seventh, the pruns japonica; and, as an eighth variety, let me suggest the deutzia gracilis.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Taffeta has a way of being gay with flowers this season. And especially lovely is it in evening wraps. (Courtesy of Molyneux, Paris.)

Paris, April 8.

WHAT a different face the chic beaches of the world are going to present this summer! For several years now there has been a gradual change in beach things, an obvious movement toward elegance, but this movement has truly reached its peak at last.

The chic mermaid has to have a great deal more than just a bathing suit these days! She has to have one suit with which to go in the water, another to put on over that when she come out of the water and while she is lounging on the beach, and yet another part of the latter, or a beach coat or wrap, when she goes for a stroll on the boardwalk, or for a cup of tea on the terrace.

Is this enough? Certainly not! There is your huge straw beach hat that has to cover even your shoulders; there are cotton gloves to protect your hands and forearms there are beach sandals most extraordinary. There are certain kinds of beach bags and a vanity which carries everything from powder puff and mirror to the extra parts of your costume.

And last, but not at all least, beach jewelry! Don't attempt to be a chic mermaid without that, because it can't be done—one must wear unusual and barbaric looking necklaces of wood or a multitude of bracelets, colored rubber, belts of any of these materials, or glass.

• • • •

It was an "occasional" wrap—not one of those wraps that you would have if it were the only one in your wardrobe, but one of those that you buy for the particular mood that just suits it. So being in the particular mood that day, I just asked Molyneux if I could sketch it for you! I could, and did, and here it is—the many-colored taffeta evening cape with its unusual silhouette and vivid red, green, blue and orange coloring.

• • • •

Beach jewelry, without being able to tell you exactly why, just amuses me! It's so whimsical and useless, so barbaric and yet so "little girlish" and so decorative. Patou designs a special necklace made of silk fringe and wooden beads. Some one else makes fascinating bracelets of twisted rubber; and especially delightful are the delicate little sets made of colored seashells and iridescent waterproof paillettes which look for all the world like tiny fish scales!

• • • •

Screens aren't just something-or-other to hide an unswept corner of your living room—but little effects of atmosphere, when placed behind a favorite vase or executed in linoleum of pale blue with modernistic waves on it, for the nursery! Oh! there's more in this screen idea than meets the eye—and if you don't believe it, send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, get the illustrated leaflet and find out for yourself.

• • • •

The Post also offers, each week in the big Sunday paper, the weekly Dare fashion letter, and we know you'll enjoy it.

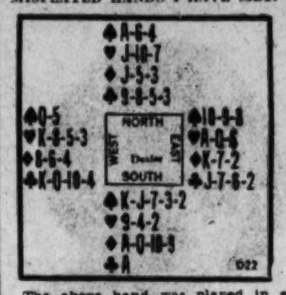
Au Revoir!

King Alfonso Receives Hammonds.

Madrid, April 8 (A.P.).—John Hays Hammond, noted American mining engineer, and Mrs. Hammond, who have been visiting Spain, were received by King Alfonso today.

WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played in a game of Auction Bridge. South bid one Spade and his declaration was followed by three passes.

If the hand had been played in Contract Bridge the bidding should have been the same. South was hardly strong enough to bid more than one Spade and North had no excuse for jumping a bid of one. Although a lucky game was in the North and South hands if properly played, it was a case in which they could not soundly "get to it."

When the hand was played, West led the King of Clubs. South's singleton Ace won and a trump then was led, dummy's Ace winning and the trump being returned for the King-Jack finesse. It lost and the second Club was trumped by South, whose King then took out East's last trump. The diamond suit then was cleared by leading South's Ace and Queen; after which South still had a trump to stop the Clubs, and he made his remaining Diamonds. Declarer, however, lost the balance of the tricks, taking a total of eight.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

As soon as Declarer saw his dummy, he could note that he must lose three Hearts; consequently he must win every trick to make game. Four Diamond tricks can be secured by leading that suit from dummy if the King be in the East hand; and of course with the trump combination held in the two hands, a trump finesse also is desired. But with only one entry in dummy it is not possible to finesse both Diamonds and Spades, and there is a far greater probability that the adverse Queen of Spades is held with only a single guard than that the adverse King of Diamonds is a singleton.

Being able to try only one finesse, the Declarer should pin his hope for game upon the even chance of the favorable location of the King of Diamonds and the two-to-three chance that the Queen of Spades will drop in two rounds.

To trick 2, South should lead his King of Spades: to trick 3, a small Spade taken with dummy's Ace. Of course, the Queen would fall and everything would be easy. North would lead the Jack of Diamonds through East, South playing the Nine if East play small; East's King is trapped and four Diamond tricks assured; this with five Spades and a Club would spell game.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

REAL old-fashioned melodrama holds forth at the National this week where Mr. Walter Gilbert is making a name for himself in "Brothers," the trick play written by Herbert Ashton, jr.

• • • •

Down at the tail end of the National program, the last name in the cast, Mr. Harold Phillips, the publicist, calls attention to one Bill Tannen—doing his first part on the stage. He is the son of Julius Tannen, erstwhile chatterbox of vaudeville and now one of the Nation's best-known comedians.

• • • •

Quite a number of local thespians contribute their talents to the success of "Brothers." Some of the more prominent are Maude Allen, Maurice Jarvis, John Sheille, who does a fine bit as Officer Mike; Desiree Harriss and Dick Douglass, one of the three Boy Scouts who accompanied Martin Johnson on his last hunting trip in Africa.

• • • •

Mr. George C. Tyler, sending an all-star cast out on the road to play Sheridan's "The Rivals," plans to go over the exact territory covered years ago by the Joe Jefferson company. With Mrs. Fiske and Jimmy Powers, the Mrs. Malaprop and Bob Acres, respectively, the 1930 company will play thirty cities in thirty nights—with Washington one of the first ports of call. The boys and girls arrive here Sunday night, May 11—for the one performance in the National.

• • • •

Miss Marion Wells, leading lady with the National Theater Players, will have her chance to star next week in Myron Fagan's farce, "Nancy's Private Affair." This play is still doing duty on Broadway and the performance here will be the first ever seen in Washington. It has to do with a young lady of undeniable charm who, in her married life, becomes somewhat careless of the externals and thus brings about a situation bordering on tragedy—saved in time to make it farce.

"John Faust, Ph. D.," in other words, Doctor Faust, is the title of the attraction billed for the Belasco Friday night. This is the forty-second annual production of the celebrated Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania. All good Pennsylvania men, naturally, will turn out to see the Reverend Dr. Faust.

The PLACE where the COAL BIN STOOD

Not only in the basement, but in the rest of the house as well, Silent Automatic makes a wonderful difference. Walls, draperies, and furniture stay clean and unsoiled. Redecorating becomes more a matter of choice than a necessity. Housework is greatly reduced. And most important of all . . . every bit of work connected with firing the heating plant entirely disappears.

Come in and let us show you Silent Automatic. See for yourself why it is the favorite oil burner in so many of the nation's largest cities, why owners are perfectly SATISFIED with their choice. Silent Automatic can be installed in any type of heating plant and requires only a minimum of alterations. You cannot buy a better burner at any price.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

GINGERBREAD.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

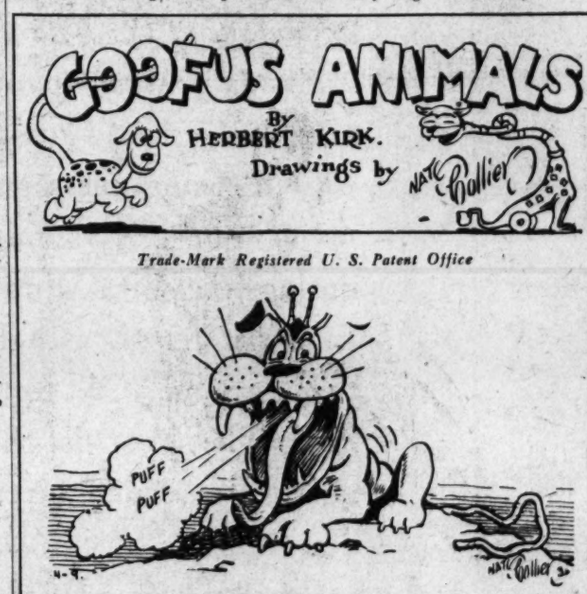
1 cup milk.
3½ cups of sifted soft wheat flour.
1 egg.
½ teaspoon soda.
1 cup molasses.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon ginger.
½ teaspoon cloves.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Stir the liquid into the dry ingredients. Since gingerbread is richer than muffins, it is more likely to fall in the oven if not properly baked. For a shallow loaf the oven should be moderate (about 375 degrees Fahrenheit); if muffin pans are used, it should be fairly hot, or about 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Sour milk may be used instead of sweet in the same quantity, but in that case the soda should be increased to a scant teaspoon and the baking powder decreased to two teaspoons.

Senator Warren Estate Is Valued at $819,000

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 8 (A.P.).—Value of the estate of the late United States Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, was set at $819,255.92 by appraisers, who filed a record of their findings in District Court here today.



The Goofus Ogohang

You never need feel self-conscious...wearing this sanitary pad

Kotex deodorizes: it fits securely and inconspicuously; it absorbs quickly and thoroughly.

WHAT a relief to know that you can depend completely on Kotex! You don't feel any self-consciousness. You are absolutely sure that this protection will last.

Kotex, you know, is the sanitary pad that is fashioned to fit. It is just wide enough, just long enough and it's made of a remarkable substance known as Cellucotton absorbent wadding, which is not cotton, but a cellulose substance that's really 5 times more absorbent than cotton.

Used in hospitals

Eighty-five per cent of the leading hospitals now use this Kotex absorbent in many kinds of surgical dressings.

It's lighter, cooler than cotton. It absorbs so quickly and so thoroughly! Yet Cellucotton transfers the moisture quickly away from the surface so that it's daintier and safer than ordinary absorbents.

There is no danger of getting Kotex wrongly adjusted. It is every bit as satisfactory, no matter which way you choose to wear it. Isn't that a relief? Then, of course, there is the reason so many women began to use Kotex: it is easily disposable.

That fact alone helped to change the hygienic habits of millions of women all over the world. Read other reasons why Kotex is superior. They are listed in the little panel at the right. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, fleecy softness that lasts for hours.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes . . . safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

Students and Schools

know what VITA-MINUTES do

The world's hardest studying is done during the early-morning hours —and into the early hours are also put the hardest classes. Minds work better and faster during the Vita-Minutes.

Everybody knows that studying, memorizing, all forms of giving attention, are hard work. Everybody has had the experience of reading on and on—and suddenly realizing that he doesn't know what he's been reading about for the last ten minutes!

But in the early morning, during the Vita-Minutes hours, the attention isn't fatigued, overlaid with impressions, as it is later in the day. Concentration is far easier, during the Vita-Minutes—and attention gives itself freely and eagerly.

That's why schools—especially colleges—put into early morning hours the classes that require the closest attention, the hardest thinking. They take advantage of the Vita-Minutes.

That's why newspapers are better-read, read with more interest and attention, in the morning. That's why morning messages register better in people's minds—in buyers minds. That's why ads read during the Vita-Minutes, read by minds that are fresh and rested, with the day's planning ahead of them, are more apt to turn into same-day sales . . . And The Post is the outstanding Washington newspaper which gives to its advertisers that big advantage.

Circulation? reader-interest? reader-confidence? The Post has all those things in full measure. It's an extra advantage of The Post that it's a Vita-Minutes newspaper.

April 9, 1905.

St. Paul's Church announced that the Gregorian chant would be sung in city on Palm Sunday.

Interest manifested in Washington on the enactment of a prohibition law in Maine.

Fort Myer soldier placed on trial for slaying of a member of the local police force at the reservation.

Police started municipal census.

District mothers complained of children buying cigarets in local stores.

Boston Beaneaters defeated Nats in opening game of season, 11 to 8.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m.

The influences on this date favor some phases of your life, and disfavor others—a romantic experience will warm your heart and cheer you, and there will be much personal happiness. There will be unforeseen business complications.

The child born on this April 9 will have many of the qualities which are typical of the age—enterprise, vision and courage. It will have an abundance of self-reliance, and it will not wait for opportunities to knock at its door. It will be sincere and loyal as a friend.

You have a creative mind, an intuitive sense and a practical ability, but you lack courage. There is more fear in your soul than faith in your heart, so you hold back when it would be wisdom to go on. The victor's laurels are out of your reach until you learn to have faith in yourself, until you are willing to gamble on your own judgment. You hate to assert yourself, and for this reason you put up with things which call for conscientious objections. The world does not respect those who let her cheat them. Show your spunk, and you will be treated with greater courtesy and respect.

You are not very material minded, nor in the least avaricious for wealth or position. Books, flowers, pictures and nature are precious to you. You are very fond of sports, and you probably excel in them more than in anything else in life.

You are a very wonderful friend to have, for you stick through thick and thin, with a warm understanding sympathy. You are too reticent to make acquaintances easily, and you hold back waiting for others to make first advances. Do not put the man or woman of your heart on a pedestal, as you may wish to do; you must not expect them to be perfect.

Successful people born April 9:

1. Fisher Ames, statesman and orator.
2. John Overton, founder of Memphis, Tenn.
3. Chatham R. Wheat, "The Murat of America."
4. Olin Levi Warner, sculptor.
5. Charles Protens Steinmetz, electrical wizard.

Village in New York Tax Free.

Philmont, N. Y., April 8 (A.P.).—This village will be free from taxation for 1930-31. Finding that the budget called for an expenditure just equal to the amount of cash on hand, Mayor Abram Sager announced that no village tax would be necessary.

CITY CENSUS WORK AT HALF-WAY MARK

Many Districts in Capital Have Been Completed, According to Moran.

SIX TAKERS HAVE QUIT

Half of the population of Washington is expected to be accounted for by today in the census enumeration which began last Wednesday.

J. Sterling Moran, supervisor of the District census, said last night that the 403 enumerators working in Washington should be well up to the half mark by today, judging by the progress made thus far in the numerous enumeration districts. Census taking in several of the districts has been completed and enumerators who have finished their work have been assigned to other districts.

Two enumerators quit yesterday because of poor eyesight, making a total of six who have given up the work since the census started last week. The vacancies were immediately filled from a waiting list. If an enumerator quits without any erasonable excuse, he is not paid for the work he has done, and the names enumerated go to the credit of the new worker.

Trouble is being experienced by the enumerators in locating residents of apartment houses. Schedules are being left at the apartments to be filled out and mailed to the enumerator. Apartment house residents are asked to cooperate in facilitating this work.

Grand Jury Pushes Smith Firm Inquiry

Secrecy Veils Nature of Charges That May Be Presented.

The grand jury investigation into the affairs of the F. H. Smith Co. and several of its officers, former officers and directors went along smoothly yesterday with still no intimation of the nature of the charges which the Department of Justice hopes to incorporate in an indictment. As on Monday the day the hearing opened, witnesses crowded the courthouse corridors in the vicinity of the grand jury room, and only a few were heard.

Nugent Dodds and the other special assistants to the Attorney General who are conducting the investigation refused to discuss the investigation or even to reveal what witnesses had been heard.

It was learned, however, that among the witnesses who gave testimony during the day were James H. Brown, superintendent of the Smith Building, on Fifteenth street, during the time the company had its headquarters in Washington; Richard G. Davis, a former bookkeeper of the firm, and Mrs. E. M. Ross, head bookkeeper for a local leather goods company. There was no inkling as to the nature of their testimony. Approximately 40 witnesses remain to be heard.

Action Without Harm Whenever Constipated

Here's a way to be rid of constipation and its ills—a way that works quickly, effectively, but gently.

A candy Cascaret at night—the next morning you're feeling fine. Breath is sweetened; tongue cleared; biliousness, headaches, dizziness, gas vanish. Repeat the treatment two or three nights to get the souring waste out of your system. See how appetite and energy return; how digestion improves.

The action of Cascarets is sure, complete, helpful to every one. They are made from cascara, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have the 10c boxes.

A GLITTERING ACHIEVEMENT, UNEQUALLED IN SIX YEARS OF THIS COMPANY'S OFFERINGS

THE EVIDENCE!

"Walter Gilbert is an actor—Walter Gilbert is splendid—'Twill be a long time before this performance is bettered in Washington or elsewhere. 'Brothers' amounts to an event in theatricals"—John J. Daly, Post.

"Evolved into an enthusiasm close to an ovation, On the bright pages of Washington stock history the Walter Gilbert performance in 'Brothers' can be scrolled.—Andrew R. Kelley, Times.

"Walter Gilbert is fine—nothing could more admirably reveal the versatility and robust talents of the leading man of the company—there must be a verdict that Miss Wells and Mr. Gilbert are well adapted to the task of carrying the burdens of the season."—D. C. Chase, Star.

"Walter Gilbert acquits himself nobly. Indeed, I have been told by those who saw Bert Lytell in the play that there is no choice between them. Marion Wells is adorable again in a sympathetic role."—Lee Somers, Herald.

"Well this did it, baby! 'Brothers' permitted Walter Gilbert to knock Washington's admiring smart-setters into the Tidal Basin. Gilbert crashes through with one of the finest performances, I for just one, have ever seen before the practitioners of stock."—Mabelle Jennings, News.

NATIONAL SYMPHONY IS HEARD IN CONCERT

Hans Kindler Is Conductor of Orchestra Program at Constitution Hall.

RECEPTION IS HEARTY

The National Symphony Orchestra, a cooperative effort on the part of local orchestral musicians, was heard in the third of a series of concerts at Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon. The guest conductor was Hans Kindler, although an earlier announcement had been to the effect that Jacques Samossoud, an old favorite with Washington audiences, was to have conducted yesterday's concert. The change was made several weeks ago and due announcement to that effect made in the local press.

Yesterday's concert was given under the management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

The good-sized audience which greeted the representative Washington musicians in the orchestra with constant applause was a happy augury of the support which may be counted upon for this effort organized to give the National Capital a symphony orchestra of its own.

Under Mr. Kindler's inspired baton the orchestra presented a fine program. It was a comprehensive presentation ranging from such classic masters as Beethoven and Wagner to Ravel, Jaernefelt and Tchaikovsky.

The orchestra showed many signs of constant improvement and progress in ensemble tone, unity of attack and the development of the solo voices of the orchestra.

The opening number was the "Overture to Egmont," by Beethoven, in which all the beauties of a score by this prince of orchestral music were duly emphasized. The Tchaikovsky number, "Romeo and Juliet," which followed it, also was well done and two Hungarian dances by Brahms won an ovation all their own.

The audience grew very enthusiastic over a dainty selection by Maurice Ravel with its characteristic tempos and theses, while the solemn beauty of Jaernefelt's "Praeludium" also won favor. The stirring overture to "Rienzi," by Wagner, completed what was on the whole a most satisfactory concert program.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 12 noon and recessed at 5 p. m. to 12 noon today.

Confirmed the nominations of George Cosgrave to be United States judge of the Southern District of California, Roy C. Fox to be Federal attorney for the Eastern District of Washington, and Frank Lee to be Federal attorney for the Eastern District of Oklahoma.

Senator Allen (Republican) Kansas, proposed an amendment to the Harris bill providing for the establishment of a selective system of immigration, subject to present quota laws.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, charged that persons owning buildings in which postoffice branches are maintained are fraudulent and charge excess rentals.

Agricultural committee favorably reported the Sheppard resolution to request the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate the causes of the 1926, 1927 and 1928 price declines in cotton.

Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, asserted that the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment had refused to turn over their records to the lobby committee.

Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, appearing before the banking committee, urged reorganization of the intermediate credit banks with a view to having this system play a larger part in the general farm relief program.

Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, appeared before the lobby committee and said that John J. Raskob should resign because of his opposition to prohibition.

J. E. Pierce, newspaper publisher of Alabama, another witness at the lobby hearing, called Senator Hugo Black a "contemptible cur" after the senator had called him "a coward."

Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, gave notice that the committee would consider the Norris resolution proposing a Senate investigation of campaign expenditures of senatorial candidates.

HOUSE.

Met at 12 noon and adjourned at 4:35 p. m. to 12 noon today.

Elections committee favorably reported a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution providing for the elimination of the short, or "lame duck" session of Congress.

Adopted the report of the judiciary committee censuring Federal Judge Moscowitz, of New York, for his conduct in office, but recommending against impeachment.

Representative Stobbs (Republican), Massachusetts, asserted that Federal judges were inconsistent in imposing sentences on casual and first offenders of the dry law.

Roy A. Young, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, predicted before the banking committee that a system of branch banking within trade areas would result in lower interest rates to the small borrower.

Representative Welch (Republican), California, urged municipal ownership of the Government piers in Hoboken before the committee on merchant marine and fisheries.

Chairman Christopherson, of the judiciary subcommittee, predicted an early report recommending an additional Federal judgeship for Kentucky.

ACTIVE STOCKS LOSE FROM 1 TO 5 POINTS

Radio-Keith's Sharp Gain Is Feature in General Sagging Market.

GENERAL MOTORS RISES

New York, April 8 (A.P.).—The stock market leaned rather decidedly toward reaction today. Professional operators for the advance managed to regain control of the price movement for a time around midday, but were soon discouraged by the steady influx of selling orders. The market sold off rapidly in the last hour, but rebounded here and there as shorts covered in the final few minutes of trading. The majority of the more active shares ended the session 1 to 5 points lower.

The selling was orderly but persistent. Unlike recent setbacks, today's reaction could not be attributed to bear attacks abetted by a late ticker. Trading was in comparatively moderate volume, and the ticker kept well up with prices on the floor. Total sales aggregated 4,689,410 shares, one of the smallest turnovers for a full session in nearly two weeks of heavy trading. The price index of 90 representative stocks lost about 1½ points.

The day's business news was for the most part not particularly favorable, but the market appeared to be governed primarily by a growing conviction among traders that a top-heavy position had been reached during the violent pool activity of the last several days, and that a technical correction was overdue. News regarding the oils was distinctly favorable, including little change in crude output, and advances in gasoline prices in the Eastern States, but profit taking was about as heavy in this group as elsewhere.

Steel Reports Less Cheerful.

Reports from the steel trade were somewhat less cheerful. It was predicted that United States Steel's unfilled tonnage statement on Thursday will show a substantial decline, and preliminary reports indicated that last week's rate of mill operations is not being maintained.

President Denney, of Erie, said that under present business conditions he could not predict when plans for the inauguration of common dividends will materialize. He indicated, however, that there had been some seasonal pickup in traffic during the last few days.

Radio Keith was again hurled upward in heavy buying, reaching new high ground for 1930 at 44¾, up about 4 points, and within 2½ points of its record price reached before the autumn crash. J. I. Case was a spectacular feature, rushing up 17 points to 290. Bulls also made some progress in the motors, General Motors reaching a new 1930 high at 52¼, but then losing most of its gain. American Can, Corn Products, United Carbon, and United States Pipe and Foundry were among shares rising 2 points or more to new high ground for the year, but losing some of their gains in the late trading.

American Telephone Loses.

United Aircraft was bid up 2 points to 99, a top price for the year, but this attracted heavy short selling, and the stock closed at 94¼. Stone & Webster rose about 2 points to a new peak for the movement, only to slip back 4 from the top.

United States Steel was under considerable pressure, dropping about 4 points, then regaining about half its loss. American Telephone lost about 4 points when the management again denied rumors of a split-up or distribution of its Western Union holdings as a stock dividend. Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, General American Tank, Mexican Seaboard, Radio, Public Service of New Jersey, Simms Petroleum, Standard of California and Westinghouse Electric were among issues losing about 2 to 5 points.

Utility and Natural Gas stocks were also under pressure. Electric Bond & Share and the United Gas issues lost about 1 point each, and Niagara Hudson, a recent strong feature, slipped back more than a point. American and Foreign Power warrants lost more than 2 points. American Gas, however, closed up a point.

Aluminum Co. dropped 10 points, Perfection Stove 9, and Anglo-Chilean Nitrate, Fokker Aircraft, Libbey McNeil and Western Air Express closed off about 2 to 4 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 8 (A.P.).—Uncertainties over the Government crop report to be issued tomorrow had much to do with a late setback in wheat prices today. Many holders of wheat future deliveries showed eagerness to realize profits on an early advance. There was also some speculative selling, because of opinions that drought agvices had been discounted temporarily, exhausting market possibilities on the upside.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1½c to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝c to 1¼c down. Oats, ⅜c to ⅝c off and provisions unchanged to 20c decline.

In the end wheat was not far from the day's bottom level, with prices off in some cases about 4 cents from the early top figures. Contributing to the late drop in values was the fact that reports of actual crop damage either in the Southwest or West were less numerous than generally expected, and that seeding appeared to be making good progress Northwest. Export business today in wheat from North America amounted to only 200,000 bushels, mostly Canadian, with the Liverpool market closing unresponsive to price upturns on this side of the Atlantic.

Action of the Chicago wheat market late in the day formed a sharp contrast to brisk advances in the earlier dealings. Then the market was feeling the full effect of assurance which had been given that the quality of wheat in storage here would be guaranteed by the elevators. Simultaneously, renewed buying on drought news was a feature, but the influence of bullish factors proved transient and was more than counterbalanced at times by selling out of May delivery holdings, selling which many traders ascribed to Farm Board allies.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat and as a result of fine weather for field work. Provisions were firmer early with hogs, but eased with grains later.

BOND PRICE TREND PROVES IRREGULAR

RAILS RELATIVELY FIRM

New York, April 8 (A.P.).—Mixed tendencies appeared in the bond trading today. Stock option issues, of course, reversed their upward movement as the share market became heavy, and the general list, although on the whole steady, closed with minus signs in some rather conspicuous places.

There seemed to be some uncertainty as to the trend of money rates. Time funds, unchanged and more liberally offered, have nevertheless been firming, apparently in expectation of increasing flow of money into the stock market and the expected demand for commercial loans which accompanies a revival in business activity. Call money, on the other hand, is easier and after again renewing at 4 per cent today the rate was reduced to 3½ per cent, with funds available on the outside at 3 per cent.

Stock Competition Seen.

Some observers believe that stocks are once more offering considerable competition to bonds, and that the latter are already finding less favor with the individual investor. Buying by banks is expected to continue in view of their reduced holdings, but it is pointed out that any important revival of speculative fervor would have an effect on inquiry from this source.

United States Governments eased by minor fractions. Treasury 3⅜s sold off a quarter on substantial sales and the same loss was suffered by Treasury 4s.

The investment rails, as a group, were relatively firm, but several weak spots developed. Santa Fe general 4s, New York Central 3½s, and Union Pacific refunding 4s yielded at least a point and numerous others averaged a quarter point lower. However, Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s, Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, Rock Island 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Southern Railway general 4s and 6½s, and Wabash 4½s held firm. Erie 5s sagged ¾ on the offering of the new issue, which was oversubscribed.

Utilities Progress Lightly.

Industrials and utilities made a little progress. Prominent in the day's business were Detroit Edison 6s, Liggett & Myers 5s, Wilson 6s, New York Telephone 6s, and American Telephone 5s of 1960, up ½ to 1 point.

Amusement company bonds, with stock features, fluctuated erratically. General Theaters 6s closed 2½ net lower. Loew's 6s lost a point and Warner Bros. 6s finished steady on late support.

American Telephone convertible 4½s dropped 3¼ net to 187¾.

Foreign obligations worked lower. Losses in some of the Latin-Americans ran from one to two points, but leading European government loans were steadier.

New bond offerings tomorrow include a $6,000,000 issue of Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway 30-year first 4½s at 94½ and a $2,000,000 issue of American Electric Power Corporation convertible 6s, due 1957, at 94½.

WASHINGTON GAS CO. HAS 1930 MEETING

Thom and George Wood, of Chicago, Are Elected to Directorships.

BROKERAGE HEAD NAMED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

George Wood, Chicago engineer and utilities expert, and Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security & Trust Co., were elected new directors of the Washington Gas Light Co at the annual meeting of stockholders held yesterday.

Mr. Wood succeeds Ord Preston, who resigned as president of the company last week, and Mr. Thom fills the vacancy created by the resignation of H. Prescott Gatley. Other directors reelected were George R. Fraser, C. H. Pope, Robert D. Weaver, Wilton J. Lambert and Fred S. Burroughs. The directors' meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing years is scheduled for Saturday.

Offsetting an impression that the management of the company is in the hands of out-of-town men, directors of the company called to mind yesterday that five of the seven directors are Washingtonians, four of them being native born. These are Wilton J. Lambert, Corcoran Thom, George B. Fraser and Robert D. Weaver.

Mechanics Savings Bank Directors.

All directors of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank were reelected yesterday at the annual meeting of stockholders held at Alexandria. They are Walter K. Bachrach, Clarence F. Burton, Ezra Gould, Mahlon Groo, George Hayes, Charles J. Kappler, L. Hoyt Lamb, Jesse B. K. Lee, Edward F. Pickford, J. C. Pyles, Edwin E. Roberts, E. Hume Talbert, F. P. Williams John P. F. White, E. S. Wolfe and Guy Mason.

Among Washington bankers planning to attend the annual meeting of the Stockholders Association of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond to be held Friday at Richmond, Va., include President Victor B. Deyber, Second National Bank; President Frank J. Stryker, Columbia National Bank; President John Poole, Federal-American National Bank; President Robert V. Fleming and Vice President and Cashier George O. Vass, Riggs National Bank; Cashier J. Frank White, National Bank of Washington, and President Floyd E. Davis, Vice President James A. Soper, Directors Melvin C. Hazen and Fred A. Smith, Lincoln National Bank.

Harriman & Co.'s Manager.

William N. Sturtevant has been appointed a local manager of Harriman & Co. He is a native of Washington, graduate of Yale and member of the Chevy Chase and Racquet clubs.

April 28 has been selected for the opening of the new branch of the McLachlen Banking Corporation on Fourteenth street, opposite the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

A review of the speech of Vice President Edward J. McQuade, Liberty National Bank, before the Philadelphia bank management conference, is a feature of the March-April issue of the Bulletin, District of Columbia Bankers Association publication, edited by Aubrey O. Dooley, assistant trust officer, Federal-American National Bank.

HADLEY HOLDS BRAVES TO 3 HITS AS NATS WIN, 4-1

GOLF IS GREAT DELUSION OF AMERICANS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

THIS is about the time of year when 5,000 professional instructors in the great American delusion called golf will be taking their victims out on the practice tees again to prattle their old familiar rigamarole about the importance of pulling in the neck, keeping the left arm stiff and shifting the weight from the ball of the right foot to the heel of the left at the instant of impact. The fee for this advice will be from $2 to $10, please, and while it may be true, as some people contend, that pros must live, I am in a position to state that all this represents a waste of money, time and hope. I have taken many such lessons myself, none of which ever did any good.

In the first place, nobody with any legitimate business on his mind could hope to memorize all the advice that a golfer receives in a normal lifetime of pathetic seeking for the true method, and, furthermore, any man who makes a conscientious effort to apply all his contradictory instructions will tie himself into a running bowknot, spraing something important in his spine, miss the ball entirely, and wind up on a white cot feeling rotten.

15 Ways to Hit Ball Proved Wrong.

I have been told fifteen ways to hit midiron shots alone, and the fact that I now can't even threaten, much less strike, a golf ball with a midiron must convince any intelligent citizen that these fifteen ways, at any rate, are wrong. Doubtless other victims of the same swindle can swear to the physical impossibility of hitting a golf ball by any of the 80 or 90 other prescribed modes of attack, and we then will have proved that the golf ball can not be hit with a midiron at all.

Having done this, we might pursue the same process with regard to all the other bats in the bag and prove that a golf ball can't be hit, thus eliminating golf, which would be a good thing if only because the 5,000 instructors would then be compelled to turn square or take up fortune telling.

Kid With Baseball Bat Knows no Rules.

Every now and again I receive a fresh batch of statistics from the United States Golf Association intended to show that the Government is unduly severe in the matter of taxing golf clubs, but this propaganda goes to the floor along with the mimeographed squawks from prize fighters who think they should be recognized as the junior welterweight champion of the world everywhere west of the Mississippi. Any game in which a man has to take lectures from a band of medicine men is open to suspicion as a fake.

Nobody ever has to take any instructions in hitting a baseball. A kid grabs a bat, steps up to the can, rock or newspaper which has been designated as the plate, digs in his toes and just naturally hits the ball with no regard for the angle of his neck in relation to his knees at the top of his back swing.

Another complaint of mine about golf has to do with the custom of placing apple trees, shrubs, sandpits and puddles in spots about the playing field where they are most likely to cause the greatest inconvenience on occasions when one does, by some freak chance, contrive to hit a golf ball with a club. This shows the malice that permeates the game.

Sand Banks Would be Insult to Poloists.

The polo people would hop on their horses and ride off home if you asked them to play through sand banks and puddles around a lot of trees. Ball players complain of match stems and the tiniest pebbles on the grass, and the gents and ladies of the tennis tournaments positively will not consent to have around any shrubs, much less sturdy oaks.

But my complaint is mainly against the professional instructors and of all those the one I loath with the bitterest feeling is Herman Barron. He is the one who told me I would hit midiron shots 200 yards straight to the pin if I would only contract my neck, keep the left elbow rigid and shift the weight in some fashion which I have now happily forgotten. I had tried fourteen other ways, but he assured me that this was the correct way, so I decided to trade with him, bought $3 worth of elementary midiron culture, went down to Florida, did as he said, and whiffed my first midiron shot of the season in the presence of ladies.

But, of course, the pros answer to failure always is, "You don't pull in your neck." This is part of the evil formula. You may be sure that your neck was well pulled in, but tradition is on the instructor's side. His lessons never are wrong. The victim always is. He didn't pull in his neck, and the vicious exploitation of dumb gullibility and hope goes on with never a protest from press, pulpit, police or prosecutor.

Dawson Tied For Medal Honors

Somerville, Canada, Also Totals 147 in North-South Play.

Voigt Tied for Third With 152; Cards of 159 Qualify.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 8 (A.P.). Totaling 147 strokes each for the 36-hole qualifying round, John Dawson, Chicago contender, and C. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., tied for medalist honor today in the thirtieth annual North and South amateur golf tournament.

Dawson added a 75 to his 72 of yesterday, when he led the field by three strokes at the end of the first 18 holes. Somerville turned the tables and added a brilliant 72 to his 75 of yesterday.

Voight Adds Round Of 76 to Total.

Forbes K. Wilson, of York Harbor, Me., former Maine State amateur champion, and George J. Voigt, of New York, the defending champion, tied for third place, each with 152. Both Wilson and Voigt had rounds of 76 today and yesterday.

T. Suffern Tailer, of New York, was next with 155, improving on his 79 of yesterday by shooting a 76 today. J. T. Hunter, of North Adams, Mass., and J. B. Stevens, of Chicago, former Princeton flash, were one stroke behind Tailer with their 156s.

The score of 159 was needed to make the championship division.

Somerville, one of the last to finish today, had nines of 36. The worst blemish on his excellent card was a six on the par four thirteenth, where he hooked his drive, put his second on the fourteenth tee and his third in a trap.

Dawson Out in 38 And Back in 37.

Dawson went out in 38 today and came back in 37. He was trapped on the first hole, carding a six. He had a birdie on the sixth.

Gar Wood Makes Trials, Keeping Times Secret

Miami Beach, Fla., April 8 (A.P.).—Trial runs of Miss America VIII, with which Gar Wood hopes to set a 100-mile-an-hour record for speed boats, were made today over the official course of Biscayne Bay. No time was given out.

Attempt to set a new record for speed on water probably will be made within the next few days, Wood said, provided his trials today are found satisfactory.

The official attempt to better his own record of 93.123 miles an hour will be over a marked mile course in the bay.

Don Sees Trial Today For Record Improbable

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 8 (A.P.). After an inspection of the beach here at low tide today, Kaye Don, British speed driver, announced that the possibility of making his trials tomorrow as he had hoped was remote.

He said the beach was too rough and soft in spots today for the attempt to be made in safety and he did not believe conditions would improve tomorrow.

Improvement in the condition of the beach led him to announce last night that he hoped to be able to make his proposed record-breaking attempt tomorrow.

Wrestling "Show" Labeled as a "Match" Ruled Out by Decree of New York Body

Mat Exhibition or a Carnival Differs From "Contest."

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 8 (A.P.).—Wrestling, that highly entertaining but much abused sport, took a pummeling today from the New York State Athletic Commission.

Taking the attitude that all wrestlers were guilty of hippodroming until proven innocent, the solemn solons decided that the term "match"—indicating "contest"—could not be applied in the future to grappling carnivals within the New York State limits. When the big thunder and thud men gather the proper terms are "shows and exhibitions," and promoters must so label the ballyhoo.

Muldoon Personally Conducts Probe.

Commissioner William Muldoon, whose 85 years of wisdom include a complete understanding of wrestlers and their customs, led the attack that coincides with the recent agitation against wrestling within the 32 States and Territories of the National Boxing Association. The ancient Muldoon, a heavyweight wrestling champion, manager and promoter many years ago, has been conducting a one-man investigation himself at recent bouts here.

While no official statement of explanation was made, the commission indicated that stronger action against suspected "hippodromes" awaited only stronger and more definite evidence of collusion between combatants.

"Knowledge is one thing," one official said, "and legal proof another."

Action of the commission was the second setback professional wrestling has suffered within ten days.

On April 1 the N. B. A., which attempted to regulate the sport and conduct tournaments to decide new champions, announced that it had washed its hands of further attempts to clean up the game among heavyweights. Stanley M. Isaacs, N. B. A. president, said then that heavyweight wrestling factions wanted secret arrangements and unsuitable opponents and had no desire for honest competition.

Two Touring Champions Nursing Feud.

For some time a feud has been on between the camps of Gus Sonnenberg, Dartmouth graduate, who brought new life into the game several years ago with his football flying tackle, and Richard Shikat, a German. Each claims the heavyweight championship. Repeated efforts so far have failed to bring them together in a bout that would definitely decide the controversy. Shikat has been recognized here as the heavyweight title holder. Sonnenberg won the title recognition by throwing "Strangler" Lewis, but both are attached to the same mat combine.

In the meantime wrestling has increased in importance during the last two years under the impetus of ballyhoo of rival claims and the presence of two touring champions, where only one grew before. After several seasons in the small clubs, wrestling was considered to have grown to such an extent here that it was moved last Wednesday night to Madison Square Garden.

COLUMBIANS PLAY SATURDAY.

The Columbians, whose game with the St. John's Prep was canceled because of wet grounds, will meet the Paramount Insects Saturday at 10 o'clock on Diamond No. 1.

FANS HEEDLESS OF COLD.

Regardless of the cold, about 1,200 fans saw the two college baseball games in the city yesterday.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 8 (A.P.).—The Chicago White Sox once more took the lead in the exhibition series with the New York Giants, winning today's game, 7 to 4. The count now stands six to five with one game having been tied.

Bill Walker and Ralph Judd were found for ten hits at the opportune time, while the Giants fell on Ed Walsh, jr., and Hal McKain for twelve safeties. Home runs were made by Eddie Marshall, of the Giants, and Carl Reynolds, of the Sox, the former's being a fluke, as Jolley lost the ball in the sun.

Ruth Limps to First On Potential Homer

Memphis, Tenn., April 8 (A.P.). Babe Ruth, still limping, was back in the Yankee line-up today as New York opposed the local club of the Southern Association. On his first appearance at the plate the Babe rapped a single off the right field wall and then hopped down to first, where he was replaced by Byrd. The hit would have been a home run had Ruth been able to continue.

Injuries Strip Macks Of Outfield Reserves

Philadelphia, April 8 (A.P.).—Connie Mack's Athletics are running pretty close to the wind for outfield reserves in the present city championship exhibition games. Spencer Harris is suffering from a twisted ankle, Mule Haas is out with a lame leg, and Al Simmons is still an absentee, although expected to be in position for the Athletic-Phillies clash here Saturday.

None of the injured men have serious hurts, however, and all are expected to be ready for the regular season opening.

G. U. Winner Over Yale Nine, 4-1

Lomax Hurls Hilltop Team to 6th Successive Victory.

Allows Only 5 Hits; Errors Figure in Run Scoring.

By JACK ESPEY.

WITH Pitcher Bill Lomax at the wheel and getting the best out of it, Georgetown's racing baseball machine scored its eighth straight victory of the season at Washington Barracks yesterday by defeating Yale's Nine, 4 to 2. Yale thus closed its Southern invasion with two losses in three games, having bowed to the All-Marines of Quantico and sunk the Navy at Annapolis.

It was a day for pitchers, in spite of the biting breezes from the Potomac River a few hundred yards distant, and both Tommy Taylor and Angus McDonald, who hurled for the Elis, as well as Lomax, were far ahead of the batters. The Georgetown flipper, however, was decidedly ahead of his two Yale rivals, a fact amply attested by not only the final result but by the box score statistics.

This was the third successive victory turned in by Lomax, who is serving his first year with the Hilltop varsity nine, and the 1,000 or more Georgetown rooters on hand probably became convinced that he is destined to be the ace of the Blue and Gray mound corps.

Lomax stole the spotlight from Albie Booth, Yale's most famous athlete, who was playing shortatop for the visitors. Booth, evidently much heavier than he was reported to have been last fall on the gridiron, appeared to be just an average college baseball player. He displayed a sure throwing arm and plenty of speed afoot, but he was no flash with the bat. He also committed one of the three Yale errors, a miscue on McCarthy's grounder in the first inning.

Yale's attack netted only five safe hits, three of which were scratchy, while four Blue batamen went out on strikes. Lomax issued two passes, hit one batter and unloosed one wild pitch, but he always had the situation well in hand.

None of the Runs Earned.

None of the runs of either side was earned, according to the strict baseball interpretation, but Georgetown was more deserving of scores by reason of its consistent ability to get men on the bases In every inning but the seventh at least one Hilltopper got to first.

In the first inning, Taylor's wild pitch allowed Capt. McCarthy to score after he had gotten life on Booth's boot, stole second and moved up on an out. The second Georgetown run came in the next frame on Mooney's infield hit, a pass and a line single to left by Morris.

Booth scored Yale's initial run in the fourth, getting a walk, stealing second and completing the circuit on Vincent's single to left. The Elis drew level in their half of the fifth when Warren doubled, stole and scored as Donovan threw wildly in an effort to nip him off third base.

A poor return of a pitched ball by Catcher Aldrich, of Yale, enabled McCarthy to score from third for Georgetown's third run in the last of the fifth, while in the sixth, Evers tallied on Donovan's safe bunt after having singled and reached the far sack on a two-base miscue by Right Fielder Walker.

C. U. BATTLES LAFAYETTE TO 6-6 TIE

Cold Calls Halt in 11th After Cards Rally in 9th.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

FOR eleven innings yesterday ball players of Catholic University and Lafayette shivered in Brookland Stadium, and, at the end, with the score tied, 6 to 6, Umpire George Watt decided that it was too cold to continue the seemingly useless struggle and called off the game.

cold—Lou Hurley, the C. U. pitcher.

A two-run rally by the Cardinals in the ninth with ont out tied the score and sent the game into extra innings.

Only three players on the field were apparently unaffected by the cold—Lee Hurley, the C. U. pitcher, and Wiley and Balentine, of Lafayette, who served in the box for the visitors. While their teammates were fumbling and kicking away balls all afternoon to the extent of fifteen errors—eight of them being made by the home players and seven by Lafayette—the hurlers refused to be discouraged and pitched cleverly throughout the game.

Hurley Permits Only 7 Hits.

Hurley, who went the route for the Cardinals, permitted only seven hits and walked none, while nine hits were obtained off the combined offerings of the Lafayette twirlers.

6th Straight Annexed by Nationals

Hadley in Rare Form Despite a Gale at Winston-Salem.

West Drives in Two With Single as Nats Clinch Series.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 8. Despite a whistling wind which at times almost shrieked and with the small gathering of fans finding it almost impossible to keep warm even with heavy overcoats, Irving Hadley today turned in one of his best performances in giving the Nats their sixth victory in a row and handing the Boston Braves their seventh straight setback.

Hadley held the National Leaguers to three hits, while he walked but one, the result being that the Nationals had little trouble in clinching their series with McKechnie's men even should they lose the remaining two games. The final count was 4 to 1, the Braves managing to score simply because they managed to pack two of their bingles into one inning, the second. Thereafter but two other Braves saw base life, with none enjoying it in the last five frames.

Bumpy Infield Is Handicap.

In addition to the unfavorable conditions overhead, the infield, which was a skinned one and lumpy in spots, handicapped the players, but despite these disadvantages the game was brilliantly played and from a strictly mechanical viewpoint was the best in which Johnson's team has figured this spring, with Earl Clark, for

PENNANT LASS CAPTURES BOWIE SPRINT IN GALLOP

Wentzel Filly Is Rushed To Front

Favorite Outruns Gun Royal and Star o' Morn in Feature.

Companion, Choice, Beats Prince Toy by Head in 5th.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

AFTER being second twice at the Bowie meeting, A. Wentzel's Pennant Lass finally broke the ice and won a race yesterday when she was first in the Midway Handicap, best number on a windswept card. Pennant Lass, as well as Joe Stern's Gun Royal, cut quite a swath at Miami, whence came both to this track, and the support of the spectators was about evenly divided between the two. The race was at 6 furlongs, and quickly resolved itself into a duel between these two, although Star o' Morn and War Instigator also ran.

Gun Royal was second all the way and despite the use of the whip in the stretch, he could not get closer than a length and a half to Pennant Lass which was an easy winner. The Wentzel filly carried 115 pounds and was in receipt of seven from Gun Royal. Star o' Morn was third, four lengths back of Gun Royal and about the same distance ahead of War Instigator.

Thurber Rates Mount In Front.

Pennant Lass was second in the Inaugural and was just nosed out in another race here last Thursday. She ran well on both occasions, but the effort this afternoon left little to be desired. Harold Thurber was riding and sent the Wentzel horse to the front at once. Rating his mount much of the way and only shaking the filly up to make things doubly safe, Thurber got home with the filly in 1:12 3-5 to score a double. Thurber's first winner was R. L. Cerry's Foolhardy, which won the first race.

There was a long wait at the starting stalls in the fifth in which seven horses started at a mile and a sixteenth. Richard Pending's Ladkin colt, Companion, won by a head from G. C. Winfrey's Prince Toy. Baked Apple was third, Talky fourth.

There was a big plunge on Dim Ray. He refused to go into the stalls and delayed the field several minutes, but the start was good finally. Prince Toy was followed to the back field by Talky and Dim Ray. In the stretch, Prince Toy looked like a winner, but Companion got close, then the two leaders see-sawed, Companion finally getting in first. The winner was favorite, paying $6.40. The time was 1:51 4-5.

Foolhardy Beats Out 99-to-1 Shot.

R. L. Gerry's Foolhardy, in the field group, won the first race for maiden 2-year-olds but by only a head, from Noisy Miss, a 99-to-1 shot. Zinn was third and My Sweet finished fourth. Leyland was unseated by Plaster Cast, the favorite, soon after the start. The time was 49 seconds, the track being very slow.

My Sweet was off in front from a bad start by the field of twelve. Foolhardy soon was in the lead, which the son of Audacious—Foolish kept to the end, but Noisy Miss was coming fast and would have won in another stride. She paid $75.20 for $2 for place and $35.30 to show. Zinn was well backed.

The field paid $11.50 to win. Grouped in the field with the winner were Ypres Rose and My Sweet. It was the coldest day of the meeting. A high wind retarded the speed of the horses and the smallest crowd of the meeting was uncomfortable unless fortunate enough to get into the steamheated clubhouse. Thurber had the mount on the winner.

Easter Finishes Fast To Win Second.

J. McCollins Brown's filly, Easter, coupled with Fair Orb, won the second race for 3-year-olds, coming from behind on the outside at the sixteenth to get the decision by a head. The Rancocas Stable's Columbus, the favorite, was second, and Mutual Friend, third. Sunview was fourth.

Coming into the stretch, it looked like Sunview's race. He had followed Guilder from the barrier and finally got the lead. Columbus, a fighting contender all the way, got to the front and was nipped by Easter. Columbus was claimed for $3,500 by M. M. Santos. The winner paid $11.00. The time was 1:15 1-5. Ten started, Newton being withdrawn near post time.

Whitney's Rueful Much the Best.

Harry Payne Whitney's Rueful won the Fads and Fancies Purse at seven furlongs, for fillies, 3-year-olds and up, by a length and a half from the Rancocas Stable's Zublena. Black Patricia was third, a half length separating her from the second horse. Stupendous was fourth and Chattering last. The time was 1:26 for the seven furlongs from the chute. The winner paid $9, with E. Watters up.

Zublena was leading Black Patricia on the back stretch but coming into the home streach it looked like either of the three leaders might win. Rueful having joined Zublena and Black Patricia. In the final struggle, Rueful proved much the best of the trio and was drawing away at the end. The race was run in the face of a cold wind.

Mulatto, a 32 to 1 shot, brought joy to the long shot players yesterday at Bowie when Jockey Quillen brought Mrs. E. Weiss' 4-year-old filly under the wire a neck in front of the favorite, Laurie, in the sixth race. Heavily played in her previous start at Bowie, the Pinn-Puff filly was overlooked by the majority in the big field of platers. Mulatto paid $66 to win, $21.60 to place and $14.10 to show.

BOWIE NOTES

The feat of A. Robertson Monday in riding four winners, was equaled by Raymond Workman at Marlboro in his first season as a rider. Johnny McTaggart and Frankie Coltiletti have ridden four winners in as many starts on Maryland tracks. Earl Sande holds the Maryland record, having ridden six winners in seven races in one day at Havre de Grace some years back, when he was the leading rider for the Rancocas Stable, and A. Abel rode five winners at Laurel in 1923, in one day.

The apprentice allowance was waived on Raving Lady yesterday and she carried 107 pounds in the sixth race.

T. W. (Chicago) O'Brien is at Bowie beating the horses as usual. He favors starting gates, and said yesterday that his good horse Vimar would be racing now if Miami had had a starting gate, for she was kicked at the barrier last winter. The list is long of horses being injured at the barrier. Crusader is an outstanding instance. He was kicked by Peanuts at Aqueduct and the injury virually ended his racing career. After being retired for the year, he failed to come back the next season sufficiently to win.

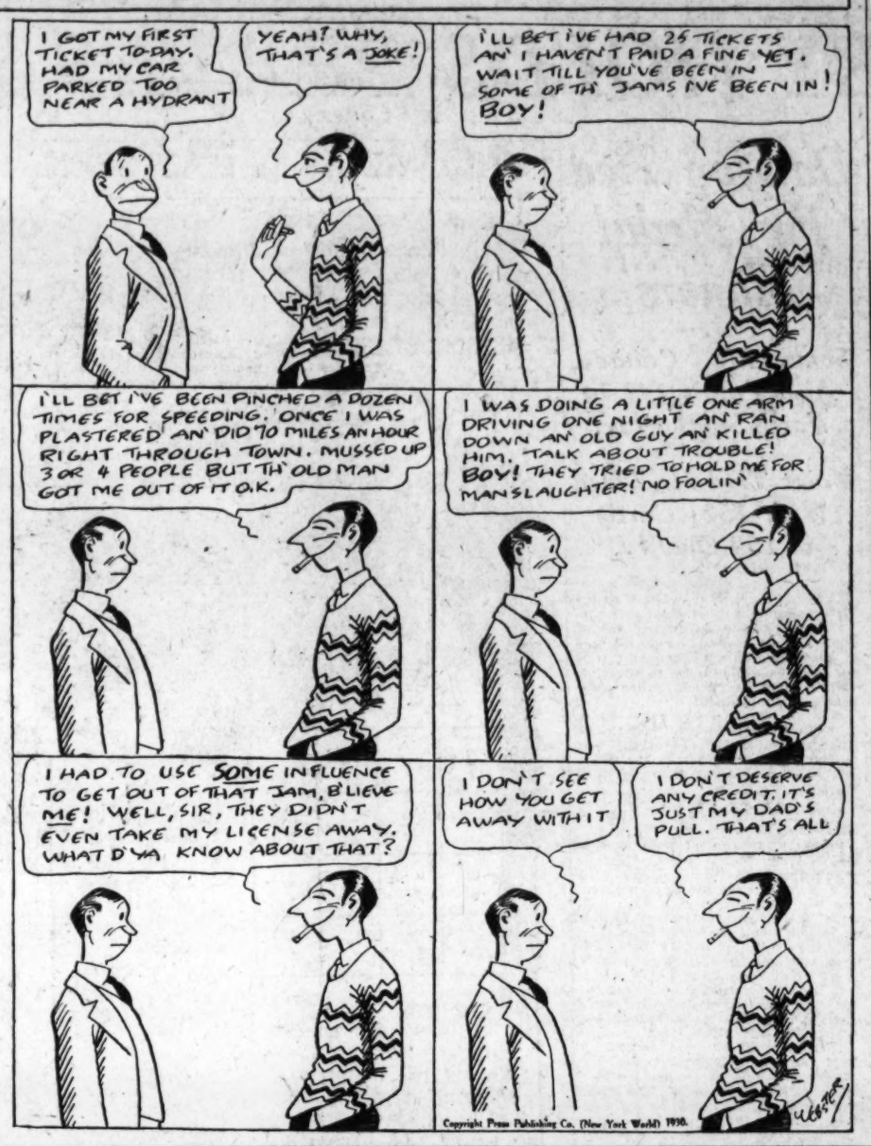
The Boy Who Made Good —By H. W. Webster



Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Fairfax Purse, for 4-year-olds and upward, is the feature offering at the Bowie Track this afternoon, and has attracted a small but select field of older horses. All the fields are large, with dozens of horses excluded. Tomorrow the Kindergarten, a stake for 2-year-olds, will be run.

FEATURE RACE—In the Fairfax JOE MARRONE III, which showed his old form at Miami during the winter, will be started for the first time this season in the East, and should win. He can go the route, and is in top form. His speed has been shown before in New York and Maryland. He will have the consistent double winner, COG-AIR, to beat. COG-AIR has won two races during this meeting, and showed great gameness, beating CRYSTAL DOMINO in his first Bowie appearance and Algol in his second. ORMONBIRD has been showing improvement, and was third to Annapolis on opening day. He should be in the money.

FIRST RACE—This is for maidens, 3-year-olds and up. STAR is the only horse in the large field with any form to speak about. He was second to Master Samover in his last race at New Orleans, and ran in the money two or three other times in the fouth. He will only have to run back to one of his best races to beat the very ordinary field in which he is entered today. BENDA has shown some speed, but may find seven furlongs too far. FRANCES ST. L. appears best of the others.

SECOND RACE—This number has a capacity field of 2-year olds, and is a claiming event, so do not look for the better class of juveniles. ZEBRA which has been in the money every start during this meeting, and they are beginning to call him the "iron horse." SIGNOLA or LUCIE ANN will get third money.

FOURTH RACE—JUDGE BARTLETT should rep

SIX-TEAM VIRGINIA UNLIMITED LEAGUE IS FORMED

Suburb Nines Open Series In May

To Meet April 17 to Complete Details, Draft Schedule.

Meetings Listed for Prince Georges and District Clubs.

PRELIMINARY organization of the Virginia division of the unlimited section of the Capital City Baseball League, sponsored by The Washington Post, was effected last night at an enthusiastic meeting in The Post Building.

Five outstanding teams from across the Potomac were represented. A sixth team is expected to join before the team managers meet next Thursday, April 17, at the Jefferson District Fire Department at 8 o'clock.

Managers present last night indorsed the plan for an extensive unlimited championship among Virginia, Maryland and District teams. They plan to complete all details at next week's meeting, with a view to starting the season the first Sunday in May.

White Sox, Cardinals Nines Considered.

The Del Ray A. C., Bauserman Motor Co., Cherrydale Fire Department, Jefferson District Fire Department and Ballston Teams were represented at last night's session. An invitation will be extended to the Anandale White Sox to complete the circuit. The Cardinal A. C. Nine, of Alexandria, is also being considered as a likely entrant in the title race.

Only managers of the teams involved will attend the meeting at Jefferson District Firehouse next week. Rules will be adopted, umpires selected, a schedule drafted and other details arranged.

The Virginia division is the second of four being planned under the direction of the Capital City League for this season. Montgomery County teams banded together last week with prospects of a spirited championship series, and complete plans for the season are expected to be drafted Friday night at a meeting of team managers in the sports department of The Post, starting at 8 o'clock.

Two Other Sections To be Formed.

A division open to District of Columbia teams will be organized Friday night at a meeting in the Municipal Playground Department, office in the District Building at 8 o'clock. All teams are invited to attend this session.

A fourth division, open to Prince Georges County unlimited teams, will be organized next week. The date and place have not as yet been designated.

The unlimited race provides for four separate series, a champion to be chosen in each, and the champions of each to meet in a title series in August. The plan has met encouraging support in all sections, and one of the most spirited races in local sandlot history is expected.

Hess, Mohawk Nines Combine for Season

The Hess A. C. and Mohawk A. C. unlimited nines have combined for the coming season and plan to seek the Capital City League title under the Hess standards. Manager Amidon has called a meeting Thursday night at 8 o'clock at his home at which time all candidates for the team are requested to report. The Hessmen plan to meet the Phoenix Nine Friday. Games are being booked by Manager Amidon at 77 Eighteenth street southeast, apartment No. 22.

Devitt Nine Swamped By Charlotte Hall, 20-2

Devitt Prep's Baseball Team met just a bit more opposition than it had expected yesterday from the Charlotte Hall Nine on the Monument lot, and when the smoke of its opening game had cleared away found itself on the short end of a 20-2 score. Devitt could make but two hits off Lynch, Cadet slab artist, who also fanned sixteen Prepmen, while the visitors were combing the slants of Krunghard and Gleason for fifteen safe blows, including a home run and six doubles.

MARYLAND U. NINE BEATEN 7-2, BY N. C.

Tarheels Bunch Hits Off Hauver to Win League Debut.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., April 8.—Hitting hard and timely, the University of North Carolina Nine beat Maryland here today, 7 to 2, in the Tarheels' first Tri-State League game of the year.

A pass to Sher and bunched hits by Maus, Lufty and House gave the Tarheels three runs in the first inning. The last four came similarly on bunched hits in the sixth. Jackson tripled and scored on Flemings' sacrifice. Sher was safe on an error, Whitehead singled and Lufty cleared the sacks with a slashing home run into deep center.

Coach Jim Ashmore used two hurlers, both of whom kept the Old Liners well in tow. The veteran Frank Fleming started and yielded but four scattered hits in six frames. The rookie Jimmy Shields made his debut at this point, and in three remaining innings fanned four men and gave up but three hits, two of these in field blows. Lufty, senior Tarheel third baseman, had a field day with a single, double, triple and homer in five times up.

Berger Hits Homer, Bases Empty.

Berger and Tansil hit doubles for Maryland. Berger hit a long home run in the fifth with nobody on. The Old Liners scored their final run in the ninth on infield blows by Hauver and Cronin and a sacrifice fly by Chalmers.

Beats Mrs. Knox, One Up, at Congressional Club.

THE initial miniature tournament of the Women's District Golf Association, played yesterday on the course of the Chevy Chase Club, was won by Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, former District amateur champion, who defeated Mrs. H. A. Knox, of the Congressional Club, on the ninth hole by the narrow margin of 1 up.

Mrs. Haynes reached the final round by defeating Mrs. Betty Mackley, of the Beaver Dam Club, 4 and 2, which was the figure by which Mrs. Knox defeated Mrs. W. A. Nottingham, of the Columbia Club. Mrs. Mackley won the consolation prize in the first flight.

In addition to winning the usual prize for low medal in the qualification round, Mrs. Haynes also won an Italian picture frame donated by Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, president of the association. The match play rounds yesterday were more or less demoralized by the large number of necessary defaults, the final results being as follows:

First flight—Mrs. J. M. Haynes defeated Mrs. Betty Mackley, 4 and 2; Mrs. H. A. Knox defeated Mrs. W. A. Nottingham, 4 and 2. Final round—Mrs. Haynes defeated Mrs. Knox, 1 up. Consolation—Mrs. Mackley.

School Nines Cancel; To Attempt Play Today

Cold weather prevented two scholastic nines from playing their scheduled games yesterday. Eastern was forced to cancel its game with Emerson, while Laurel High notified St. Alban that it would not be able to make the trip to the Capital.

Weather permitting, Eastern will entertain Emerson today at the Lincoln Park Stadium and St. Alban will attempt to get Laurel to come over for a game. In the other game scheduled for today, Woodward will open its season against the George Mason High School on the Monument Lot.

ST. JOES ARE BUSY.

The St. Joseph A. C. Unlimited Nine will drill today on the Plaza at 5:30 o'clock and Friday will engage the Washington Terminal Nine at 5:30 o'clock on the Terminal Y. Diamond. Sunday the Saints meet Fort Washington's soldier nine at Fort Washington.

Legion Nines to Organize At Meeting Listed April 18

A MEETING of teams wishing to compete in the American Legion baseball series, to be conducted again under the auspices of the Capital City League, will be held Friday, April 18, Wesley Stuart, District Athletic Officer of the Legion, announced last night. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock in Room 2 in the District Building.

Five teams have announced their intention to seek the championship this season and others are expected to apply for contracts at next week's meeting.

The George Washington Post Nine, which won the championship last year, has been reassembled but it is uncertain whether that post will be represented in the series. The Lionels will again represent Lincoln Post and Spengler Post's team is back in the field. The Eastern A. A. Nine, which last year won the Capital City League insect title, is anxious to get in the Legion race. Victory Post will be represented again.

All teams wishing to compete in the series are invited to send representatives to the meeting next week, Stuart stated.

The Spengler Post Team will practice Friday on No. 4 diamond. Manager Baker is anxious to secure new candidates and Saturday and Sunday games are being scheduled by Milton Warring at Decatur 548. Candidates are asked to report Friday.

Gallaudet Nine Plays Tank School Today

The twice-delayed inauguration of Gallaudet College's 1930 home baseball season is scheduled for this afternoon at Kendall Green, where the Blue will meet the Tank School Nine from Fort Meade at 3:30 o'clock. In the only other local college diamond attraction today, Catholic will entertain Delaware at Brookland Stadium, starting at the same hour.

Nothing is known here of the strength of the Soldier Nine, but Gallaudet, judging from its heavy-hitting performance against Maryland Normal last Saturday, ought to be strong enough to give the visitors a hard battle.

Capt. Konrad Hokanson, sturdy little pitcher who fanned eleven Maryland Normal batters, will toe the slab for the Blues, while Clyde McMullen will catch.

Ed Frankovick or "Douce" Devin will take care of the box work for Catholic against Maryland.

Maryland's touring tossers are scheduled to engage the Duke University Nine today at Durham, N. C.

Nats Win Sixth Straight, Clinching Braves' Series

the Braves, and Ossie Bluege, Joe Cronin and Buddie Myer, for the Nats, turning in sensational catches or stops.

Harry Selbold and Bob Brown, the latter a New England high school lad last year, did the Boston flinging, but both were unfortunate in that the Nats grouped many of their ten hits.

Washington broke the ice in the opening round when Cronin singled after both West and Goslin walked. In the next session Moore's opening one shot, a useful out and Rollings' mile-a-minute bounder past Hayes, who again played first, tied the score.

West's Single Scores Bluege and Hayes.

The Nationals "blew" an opportunity in the third, but finally took the lead in the fourth. The telling blow of the frame was a single by West, which scored Bluege and Hayes, who had led off with one basers in rapid succession.

Brown relieved Selbold starting the eighth and he quickly found himself in hot water. Goslin opened up with a single, but was caught on Clarke's good peg when he tried to go all the way to third on Myer's one baser. On Cronin's double, the only extra-base blow of the game, Myer was held at third, but he was able to cross the plate on Hayes' sacrifice fly after Bluege had coaxed a free ticket to first.

Goslin, Cronin and Luege did the bulk of the Washington hitting, each being credited with two safeties.

NAVY NAMES PENN RELAY SQUAD

Middies Enter Three Quartets and Individual Performers.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8. — Earl Thomson, coach of the Naval Academy track team, has entered relay teams and individuals in five events in the thirty-sixth annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival on April 25 and 26.

The Middies will compete in the two sprint relays, the quarter mile and half mile and will have a one-mile team in the class B championship race. Wearers of the blue and gold will also be seen in the shot put, discus, high jump, pole vault and broad jump.

Since Thomson took charge of track at Annapolis several years ago the Middies have been developing fast. Larger squads and greater interest has enabled Thomson to develop excellent dual meet teams.

Coach No Stranger To Relays.

The Navy coach is not a stranger to the relays. He is one of the few individuals in the long history of the game to win three successive championships in a special event. In 1920-21 and 22, Thomson skimmed across the hurdles in the 120-yard event to win each time.

Thomson holds the world's record for the 120-yard high hurdles. He topped the timbers in 14 2-5 seconds on May 20, 1920, to establish a mark that has stood the test of time since then. As a member of the Dartmouth track team and of the Canadian Olympic Team, Thomson was a stellar performer in his favorite event during his entire college career.

Meet Stubborn Competition.

The Middies will have plenty of competition in the events Thomson has selected for them. In the half-mile relay the future ensigns will meet among others, Swarthmore, Yale, Indiana, Georgetown, New York University and Army. In the quarter, Ohio State, Army, Georgetown, Villanova, New York U. and others will be met.

Thomson has selected for his sprint teams, Russell "Whitey" Lloyd, George K. MacKenzie, W. D. Coleman and R. W. Johnson. For the one-mile team he has appointed Lloyd, W. D. Coleman, R. R. Briner and R. L. Evans.

W. & M. WINS, 1 TO 0, OVER HARVARD

Wallace Allows No Hits Until 8th; Run Follows Wild Pitch.

Special to The Washington Post.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., April 8.—In a pitchers' duel that was greatly aided by a high wind, William and Mary defeated Harvard's Crimson Nine, 1 to 0, this afternoon.

Wallace, the Indians' twirling ace, held Harvard hitless until the eighth inning, being found for a single in that frame and the ninth. The William and Mary twirler struck out 10, whizzing three past Ben Ticknor, all-American football player, when the big fellow went in to pinch hit for Sam Borski in the seventh.

The Indians' run came in the first inning when Ryan singled after Sauerbrun had walked, Sauerbrun scoring on a wild pitch to Wood at first.

W. & M. HOST TO HARVARD TRACKMEN

Crimson Stars Train for Week; In Meet Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., April 8.—The second oldest college in America is playing host to the oldest this week with Harvard University's track squad of 30 being the guest of William and Mary's track team for a week of training, which will culminate with a dual meet between the two Saturday.

The Harvard Team, under the tutelage of Head Coach Eddie Ferrell, arrived today, bringing with it an even greater group of celebrities in the track world than accompanied them on a like trip here in 1928. Their crack mile relay team, which set a new world's record of 4 minutes 20 seconds indoors this winter, with Hennessey, Monore, Cummings and Record, will be seen in action.

With Capt. Mason, who consistently runs the century in 10 flat; Frank Cummings, who holds the New England A. A. U. quarter-mile record at 49.6 seconds; Red Record, a great hurdler, running the lows in 24.4 seconds last year as a freshman; Dave Cobb, Harvard - Yale - Oxford - Cambridge mile champion at 4:24; Briggs, Olympic javelin thrower; Sutermeister, pole valuter, who tied for first in the indoor intercollegiates this year with 13 feet 5 inches, and a galaxy of other stars, the Crimson squad presents a well-balanced outfit—one that should accomplish great things this spring.

Meet Opens Harvard Track Schedule.

Harvard's stay here in Williamsburg is primarily for the purpose of training, the Crimson runners taking advantage of the warmer weather and fast William and Mary track to condition themselves for their harder meets North later in the spring. Their meet with the Indians Saturday marks the opening of the schedule, this being but their third week of practice.

Williams and Mary, victorious over V. P. I. in its opening meet last Saturday, should give their touted visitors some good competition in individual races, but appear to be too weak in field events and reserve strength to hope for much else. Johnson, who set a new William and Mary record of 1:58.5 in the half-mile Saturday in the Gobbler meet; Bill Scott, Indian sprinter; Smither, in the dashes and 440, and Swentzel and Baldacci, in the field events, appear to be the Indian's best bets.

Fighting for Democracy

While stationed in Bussy-le-Chateau, France, F. H. 165, Forty-second Division, received orders that in addition to an officers' mess a noncommissioned officers' mess should be established. An orderly was obtained to serve the "noncoms" mess, and when he returned to his quarters after the first meal he found his belongings out in the company street, and it took the company commander to find and designate another spot where this particular fellow could "hang his helmet."

Many curses were directed and placed on the "noncoms" mess by the remainder of the enlisted personnel, who were compelled to line up for chow and then select a soft seat on the ground to eat, while the sergeants and corporals were being served.

The night of the third day following the compliance with the aforesaid order, the Germans decided to put over a barrage, and the second shell exploded in the center of the shack where this high and handsome mess had been served.

After that no effort was ever made again to establish a "noncoms" mess, and if one had been started I am sure that it would have enjoyed no patronage. WALKER H. COLSTON,

Heroes "Over Here"

Oh, it wasn't necessary to go "over there" in order to get all of the thrills of the late "unpleasantness." At Fort Sill, Okla., in the winter of 1917-18, the officers had all the hardships of the "buck privates." Having arrived from the "Land of Tranquil Delights," as Charles Warren Stoddard styles them, at this "post of the prairies" in the dead of winter, and it was Christmas Eve when our troop train pulled into Gerpnimo's "last stand," the animals and the other "beings" had their "heads down" from sheer fatigue. The sandstorms were doing their utmost and the mercury was as low as it could go. The Red Cross had some sweaters and gauntlets and pulse-warmers to comfort us, and the regular officers and the soldiers already on duty at Lawton, were there to greet us, but for all that it was hard from an unpatriotic point of view. Still, we were glad to be back on the mainland—I shall not say the United States, for Hawaii is considered a part of them. The personnel for the most part had been retained in Oahu more than the customary three years, due to the transferring of the ships to the Atlantic for troop transportation to the scene of carnage. I repeat to you that we were glad to be home at any cost. But the "huge thrill" came in the night, when we wanted our repose. This was the usual procedure at night: We would put bricks on the enormous egg stove in our quarters—perhaps I should say "shacks"—heat them to a high degree and shift them in quick time to our bunks. Well, that was fine for the first hour, but after that period had elapsed, oh, man, how frigid, cold, freezing it was! It would take a Rudyard Kipling to describe our "inconvenience". Really, it would bring the rigor mortis to a brass monkey. The sand is worthy of honorable mention, inasmuch as it found its way deep into the farthest recesses of the firmest trunk-lockers. Twould blow in every direction and at any time. Indeed, it is hard to say whether the cold (which froze in stiff death one of our men standing for shelter behind a telegraph pole, and a score of our horses), or the fine desert sand did the most damage to the First Field Artillery, which never saw the "front," but which is one of the most gallant regiments of Uncle Sam's land forces.

From Outraged Dignity

The St. Mihiel drive was under way. It was early afternoon of the first day and the battalion was in the Thieacourt area. German prisoners were filtering back to the rear.

A German major appeared at the Battalion P. C. under guard. With all the dignity he could command as an officer of the kaiser's army, the major demanded of the lieutenant colonel commanding the battalion that a commissioned officer of equal rank be detailed to conduct him to the prison camp in the rear.

The orders had just been given for the Battalion P. C. to advance. The battalion commander turned to his orderly, a small, naturalized Italian, in his early twenties.

"Orderly," said the battalion commander, "take this prisoner to the rear."

Much averse to leaving the P. C. just as the order to advance had been given, the orderly started to voice a protest, as the trip to the rear and return would take several hours, but the battalion commander waved all protests aside.

As the P. C. moved forward the little Italian orderly, with his prisoner, headed for the rear, was soon out of sight.

Some 30 or 40 minutes later the orderly, out of breath from running, rejoined the moving P. C. The battalion commander was quite surprised at the sudden return of the orderly. He immediately asked, "Where is your prisoner?"

With the utmost precision and snap, the orderly came to a rifle salute and reported, "He died, sir."

C'est la guerre!

J. B. RUSSELL,
Front Line Post 1401, V. F. W.

Just Fireworks

Our regiment left its training area at dusk on a hot day late in September, 1918. Our battalion was the second in line of march, and H Company, of which I was a member, was, like the rest of our outfit, tired of drilling and ready for action. The word was passed down the line that we were on our way to the front. We hiked all the way, with the usual rest periods.

About midnight we approached the town of St. Die, situated in the Vosges sector. We passed troops of French cavalry and infantry who were evacuating this town, which seemed to be our objective. We could hear gunfire for some distance and, judging from the direction of sound, it appeared that this particular town was under fire. Unaccustomed as we were to the sound of gunfire, we hastily formed the opinion that our yearning for action would be satisfied before the dawn of another day.

We halted for an indefinite period before entering the town. A survey of our surroundings disclosed the fact that this town would afford some shelter in the event of an attack. The incessant gunfire continued with increasing volume as we entered the town, passed through its narrow streets and halted in a large, cobblestone square. We naturally expected to hear the command, "Deploy for action." Instead we were commanded to "Fall out and rest." Hot coffee and jelly sandwiches were served us by a cheerful bunch of canteen workers. However, our fears were somewhat allayed by this unexpected reception. Meanwhile, the gunfire from small-gun batteries located in the belfry of the town hall continued to bang away and add to the crescendo from those of larger caliber.

We left the town and billeted for the night in shell-torn and shrapnel-peppered old farmhouses on its outskirts. The French soldiers whom we relieved informed us in the morning that those guns were constantly fired to drown the sound of marching feet and thus camouflage the movement of troops from the enemy.

JOHN F. PORTER,
Company H, 367th Infantry, Ninety-second Division, James E. Walker Post, No. 26, American Legion.

Right You Are!

The zero hour had arrived and passed. The first all-American Army had been formed under the direct supervision of Gen. John J. Pershing and to it had been assigned the task of wiping out the salient sector in front of Metz, that stuck out like a threatening finger pointing toward Paris. Mont-Sec was in the line of advance. It was at this point that the French had lost thousands of men in previously storming this stronghold, only to have it recaptured a short time later. Mont-Sec, like everything else, fell before the onslaught of "Black Jack" Pershing's army, many prisoners captured, many field pieces taken, and with comparatively few casualties. All objectives had been reached either on or before schedule, and the first all-American drive, that of St. Mihiel, was a success.

Sergt. Black, of the D. C. outfit, was standing near the door of a dug-out when a shell exploded a little too near for comfort. Black turned and stepped into the dugout, where he encountered one of the officers, who had just joined the organization and was undergoing his first baptism under shellfire. The officer approached Black and made inquiry as follows: "Sergeant, whose shells are they, theirs or ours?" Black replied: "They are ours, sir; they are falling in our front yard.

CAPPER AIDS MOVE OF BACK TO DISTRICT

Senator Promises Support to Resolution When it Is Sent to Him.

TEACHERS TO CONVENE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Not since its creation more than a year ago has the Back-to-the-District Association received such encouragement as it did yesterday with the receipt of a letter from United States Senator Arthur Capper, in which he stated that upon adoption of a suitable resolution he will offer it and support it in the Senate, according to an announcement last night by Richard L. Eacho, vice president.

Discussing the letter from the senator, which was addressed to Rollins Smith, chairman of a special committee from the association, and which was in reply to a request made following an interview, Mr Eacho states that the senator says that while there is little possibility of its success at this session he feels confident that the movement will meet with success at the next session of Congress and that he will fight for its passage.

There will be a special meeting at the association's headquarters in the Rucker Building at Clarendon Saturday night, at which time a resolution calling upon the Congress to have that area which included the original 10-mile area again returned to the District of Columbia, Vice President Eacho announces.

Plans for a membership drive for the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce were formulated yesterday at a special meeting of the board of directors with the chairman of the membership committee, Guy N. Church, held in the dining rooms of the Boulevard Bakery at Clarendon.

From the office of the secretary of the chamber it was learned that members of the board of directors will constitute the membership committee.

No time limit has been set for the drive, but it is understood that the plan is to make a complete canvass of the county in an effort to visit all those who are in any way eligible to membership.

LEAF TOBACCO SALE IS 452,757 POUNDS

Average Virginia Price for March Amounts to $11.61 Per 100.

QUALITY SLUMP NOTED

Richmond, Va., April 8 (A.P.).—Leaf tobacco sold at auction for Virginia farmers during March amounted to 452,757 pounds at an average price of $11.61 per hundred, according to a summary compiled from warehouse reports and announced by John A. Hicks, agricultural statistician for the Federal-State crop reporting service.

Only five markets selling fire-cured tobacco and the Richmond sun-cured market operated during March, the report said. Flue-cured markets completed sales for the season during the latter part of February.

"Fire-cured sales for March amounted to 385,929 pounds at an average price of $11.46 per hundred, compared with 3,236,599 pounds for March last year, which sold for an average of $8.15 per hundred," the report continued.

"The price declined considerably from that of the previous month, the price for February sales being $15.84. This decline in price is not unusual and is accounted for by the fact that tobacco offered for sale at the end of the season is of much lower quality than that sold during previous months.

"Sun-cured sales during the month amounted to 66,818 pounds, compared with 831,523 pounds sold during March last year. The price was $12.52 per hundred, compared with $9.76 for March, 1929. The market for this type will remain open during April. However, the sales are expected to be small, as it is reported that very little tobacco is left on farms.

"The quality of tobacco sold during March was generally poor. According to warehouse men, the sales graded 15 per cent good, 34 per cent medium, and 51 per cent common."

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 8.—Melvin Hooks, colored barber, was brought ham County jail here in connection night and is being held in Rockingham County jail here in connection with the burglarizing of Friddles Restaurant here three weeks ago.

Hooks, a former Oklahoman, was traced to Okmulgee one week after the burglary. He was returned here in the custody of Sheriff Charles R. Fawley and Chief of Police Frank L. Dovel. The April grand jury will be asked to indict Hooks and his three alleged companions on charges of burglary. Willie Gaines, also colored, is the only other member of the quartet in custody, William Tams and James Scott being fugitives. The four men are alleged to have obtained about $1,000 in cash from the restaurant safe and then heaved the cabinet into North River at Bridgewater.

Virginia Youth Faces Charge of Killing Girl

Salem, Va., April 8 (A.P.).—Buren Harman, 20-year-old Floyd County, Va., mechanic, retained his composure while ten State witnesses related today the events which led up to the discovery of the body of Freeda Bolt, 18, his sweetheart, on Bent Mountain last December 12. Harman is charged with murder in connection with the girl's death.

Opal Bolt, 21, Freeda's sister, recalled to the stand today, told again in detail the happenings on the night she said her sister left their boarding house in Willis, Va., with Harman and did not return. She said she heard Freeda and Harman plan to go to Richmond to marry.

Charges Ignored By County Jurors

Action Refused in Alleged Illegal Party in Montgomery.

The Montgomery grand jury yesterday ignored charges growing out of an alleged illegal party at the old Club Mirador property on Bradley boulevard, Bethesda, May 3. Through Attorney Harold C. Smith, of Rockville, the owner, Miss Julia Walker, sought to have indictments charging arson and unlawful entry returned by the body.

Miss Walker appeared before the grand jury and told that body that she had not had knowledge of the use of the house and that damage of $1,500 had been caused by a fire set in an effort to escape by persons in the house at the time police raided it. The persons staging the party had even gone to the electric company and placed a deposit to have the lights turned on, she said.

The owner and Attorney Smith gave a list of names to the grand jury which was said to contain the real names of persons arrested at the party, most of whom gave fictitious names when arraigned before a justice of the peace on charges of disorderly conduct.

COUNCIL TO DISCUSS FAIRFAX WARD BILL

SPECIAL MEETING IS SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1

The Fairfax Town Council has decided it will hold a special meeting next Tuesday night to discuss a bill passed during the last session of the State Legislature authorizing the council to submit to a referendum the question of dividing the town into four wards.

At the present time the mayor and the members of the town council are chosen without regard to the location of their residences. The law proposes to divide the town with the Little River turnpike and the Chain Bridge-Fairfax Station road as a dividing line. The council has not received an official copy of the bill, but it is believed that it contains the same provisions that were in the bill as it was introduced. These provisions did not make the referendum mandatory upon the council but authorized it to hold an election on the question not less than 30 days after the bill was passed. The understanding of the council is that the bill will lapse if they do not take such action voluntarily.

"The question of whether to place the present brick sidewalk in front of the homes of Representatives R. Walton Moore and F. Shelld McCandlish was discussed but action was deferred until the special meting, as some have suggested that it would be better to regrade and lay a new concrete walk. Various bills of the town were ordered paid.

Because of the "weakened condition" of the Fairfax County Jail Judge Howard W. Smith, of the circuit court, on petition of Sheriff E. P. Kirby ordered Boston Williams, colored, of Chantilly, who was convicted on a charge of second degree murder for the killing of Howard Simms, at Herndon, to be removed to the Alexandria Jail pending the arrival of officers to take him to the State Penitentiary. Williams, who asked for a 60-day stay of execution when he was convicted so that he might appeal to a higher court, has reconsidered, and requested the court to set aside the order and permit him to begin serving his term in the penitentiary before the expiration of the 60 days. This request was granted by the court.

EDITORS, INDICTED, PLACED UNDER BOND

Two of Four Montgomery County Men Acused of Libel by Jury.

OFFICIALS ARE ABSOLVED

Two of the four editors of the Montgomery Independent, who were indicted on charges of libel yesterday by the Montgomery County grand jury, surrendered themselves and were released on bond shortly before the courthouse at Rockville closed.

The four were indicted yesterday by the grand jury which had conducted an investigation into charges printed in the Independent alleging mismanagement of county affairs by county officials. The four indicted are Walter S. Casey, present managing editor, and Walter W. Liggett, Harrison B. French and Morris A. Bealle, former editors. Casey and French surrendered themselves. Casey was released on $1,500 bond and French on bond of $500.

In its report filed with the circuit court at adjournment the grand jury gave the members of the board of county commissioners, Benjamin C. Perry, Lacy Shaw, Clagett C. Hilton, Robert L. Hickerson and Downey M. Williams, and Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, complete exoneration.

Officials Asked Inquiry.

The county commissioners and Maj. Lee appeared before the grand jury soon after it convened and asked that the charges be investigated and that indictments be returned against any county official found guilty and that if the charges were found to be groundless to return indictments against the newspaper officials.

The grand jury reported, "We have investigated a number of alleged unequal real estate assessments that have been called to our attention and in every case we find that these assessmetns are fair, proportional and in line with the general plan of assessment in the county.

"We have also investigated several cases where county pensions have been alleged to be paid after the death of persons named as being beneficiaries and found that in every case payment of county pensions ended with the death of the beneficiary.

Property Found on Books.

"We have also investigated the tax status of several pieces of privately owned property which were alleged not to be upon the county tax books and find that these properties are on the county tax books at the same ratio of assessments as adjacent properties.

"With reference to a number of new roads that have been built or are being built in the county from proceeds of recent county bond issues and which roads are alleged to unduly and improperly increase the value of privately owned property of various owners, we find that the roads that have been called to our attention in Montgomery County have, in our opinion, been properly located and built for the general benefit of the sections of the county in which they are located and to wisely serve local and through traffic.

"We have further investigated a number of charges of illegal and improper acts on the part of the county officials and do not find any such charges supported in fact.

County Interests Served, Belief.

"Our investigations have convinced us that all county expenditures were for the best interest of the people of Montgomery County.

"We recommend that the pay of the grand jurors and the petit jurors be increased from $3 to $5 per diem."

E. Barrett Prettyman, president of the board of directors of the Independent, said last night that the directors will "back these men to the limit," with the exception of Bealle, who, they claim, was an independent owner and not subject to their orders.

Liggett, who was indicted on three counts, is said to be in the West, and Bealle was reported in a Washington hospital. Bench warrants have been issued for both.

BILL TO SEND WATER TO COUNTY FAVORED

Supplying of Montgomery by District Is Approved by Commissioners.

100,000-GALLON IS LIMIT

Approval was given by the District Commissioners yesterday to the pending House bill providing for the District to supply Montgomery County, Maryland, with water.

The bill provides that the water shall be limited to the area within the jurisdiction of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and that the District water system shall be tapped at Forty-ninth and Chesapeake streets northwest.

The Commissioners said the connection should be made at Forty-ninth and Fessenden street northwest and proposed that the bill be so amended, adding that the change would meet the approval of the Maryland commission.

To safeguard the needs of District consumers, however, the supply given to Maryland territory may not go beyond 100,000 gallons per day, the Commissioners said.

"Pressure readings over a 24-hour period have been made in order to safeguard the interests of consumers in the District," the Commissioners said in their report to the House District committee, "and the limit of peak consumption for the proposed connection should not exceed 100,000 gallons per day until such time as the 26-inch main proposed for the ultimate development has been installed."

It is proposed to make a 12-inch connection in Forty-seventh street between Fessenden and Brandywine until the ultimate development is worked out. The bill, the Commissioners said, had been approved by the Budget Bureau, provided the Maryland commission met all the expenses of connecting with the District water system. Such has been the plan.

ALEXANDRIA ROTARY HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Cake With Lighted Candle and Present Put at Plate of Each Member.

LEGION MAPS CAMPAIGN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The second birthday anniversary of the local Rotary Club was celebrated yesterday at luncheon in the George Mason Hotel, with George Rothwell Brown, prominent newspaper columnist, of Washington, as the principal speaker. He was introduced by Francis H. Pannon, who, with Judge W. S. Snow, L. G. Harris and Lawrence Roland, constituted the entertainment committee.

A small "birthday cake," with a lighted candle, was at the place of each member, and each one was given a birthday present, some of which, when opened, created much amusement to the recipients and particularly to the other members. The singing was led by Everett Swan, and Miss Christine West, with Mrs. Anna Meeks at the piano, gave several vocal selections.

Mr. Brown, who said he is now a Virginian by adoption by reason of having purchased a farm in Fairfax County as a summer home, painted a rosy picture of prospective Government developments on the Virginia side of the Potomac, and urged a closer cooperation between the business men of the two cities. He suggested a central organization, which, he predicted, would result in gradually evolving some working agreement for the people of both Washington and Alexandria, to their mutual benefit. He predicted that in time Washington and Alexandria will bear relations similar to those existing between Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Judge Snow, on behalf of the club, presented Mr. Brown with a toy tractor, and the latter remarked that he might utilize it in making "corn and rye," provided it did not violate the provisions of the eighteenth amendment.

The service given the World War veterans and the community by the American Legion through the agency of its 10,000 posts throughout the country, was the subject of a talk by State Commander Roszel, of Winchester, Monday night at Gadsby's Tavern, headquarters of the local post. He outlined the beginning of the legion, its tremendous growth, the battles it has fought for justice to the disabled men and their dependants in its far-reaching program, and made an appeal to every eligible veteran to affiliate himself with the organization.

Immediately following Commander Roszel's talk, Vice Commander Sidney Weil announced the personnel of the membership committee, which will canvass every section of the community. It will pay particular attention to the cases of veterans who are suffering disabilities, or have some matter growing out of their war service which has not been satisfactorily adjusted. Vice Commander Weil emphasized the fact that the post needs the men more than their dues, and that only by signing up the greatest possible number of veterans could the organization be truly representative and accomplish the most for the veterans and the community.

Five bids for furnishing temporary quarters for the local postoffice during the construction of the new Federal building have been received by Postmaster F. Clinton Knight and tur
